Survivors of Ship Sunk in Storm

Five of 20 survivors of a British freighter which sank off the coast of New Hampshire, are shown recovering in a Portland, Me., hospital. The men were rescued when their ship piled onto Boon Island Ledge, off Portsmouth, during a driving blizzard last Friday. The rescued are (l. to r.) Thomas E. Williams, Verner Christensen, Carl Sorensen, Helge Milensen and Stanley D. Wood.

Berlin Hit By Peak RAF Raid

By W. W. HERCHER

LONDON, Feb. 16 (AP) — The RAF smashed Berlin last night with the greatest load of bombs ever dropped on a single target—well over 2800 tons which cascaded down in a smothering 20-minute attack by 800 to 900 heavy bombers.

Forty-five aircraft are missing from the night's operations, which included other forays.

The RAF waited two weeks to deal this crushing blow against the expiring capital of the German Reich. Not since Jan. 30, when Berlin was hit by a force approaching 800 planes, had it made a major attack.

It is believed the armada sent over Germany last night comprised the greatest number of planes ever to fill the Reich's skies in one night, including 1000 heavy bombers and more than 200 lighter craft. Berlin received the contents of 800 to 900 big bomb bays.

BERLIN IN FLAMES

Billows of flame swept through the city when the assault was finished. Crews of reconnoitering Mosquitos reported a very large field of fire, with smoke pluming four miles into the air.

Just before Berlin was hit, a smaller force of Lancasters made a feint attack on Frankfurt-on-Oder, 50 miles east of Berlin, and Mosquitos bombed targets in western Germany and Holland. Mines also were laid in enemy waters.

The heaviest previous raid on Berlin was on Jan. 20, when more than 2578 tons (2300 British long tons) were dropped within a hour. The RAF's heaviest previous raid on a single target was its attack on Hannover, about 2800 tons (2500 long tons) last Sept. 22.

A Swedish report quoting private advices reaching Stockholm said high explosives and incendiaries showered down on all sections of Berlin last night.

FLAK INTENSE

All bus, tram and underground traffic was reported disrupted. Berlin correspondents of Swedish newspapers were almost completely

WAR WRITERS' ON-THE-SPOT RADIOS BANNED

LONDON, Feb. 16 (AP) — Delayed dispatches from the Anzio bridgehead below Rome said today the Allied command had banned the use of on-the-spot radio facilities to news correspondents, decreeing that news copy must be carried by courier service and censored at base headquarters on policy as well as security grounds.

A Reuter's dispatch, dated Feb. 13, said Lieut.-Gen. Clark's command had taken this action because of annoyance caused by some press dispatches concerning the beachhead operation. The dispatch said there was criticism of reports which called the beachhead another Tobruk or Dunkirk.

Norman Clark, representing the combined British press, said in a dispatch also dated Feb. 13, that this "bridling" of the correspondents' attempts to represent the day-to-day situation correctly "must not be allowed to stand."

Declaring frontline dispatches now will be anticipated by reports written far from the scene of action, Clark said the latter will always tend "to oscillate violently in contrast to those written in full knowledge of the facts."

"There have been fights before on this issue of war reporting," Clark added, "and in every case the point has eventually been conceded."

British Casualties In Italy, 36,626

LONDON, Feb. 16 (AP) — Prime Minister Churchill told Commons today British and Dominion casualties in Italy from the initial landing on Sept. 3, 1943, were 7635 killed, 23,283 wounded and 5708 missing—a total of 36,626.

These figures do not include casualties suffered by the RAF or the Royal Navy, Churchill said.

Easy Picking

CAIRO, Feb. 16 (AP)—substantial increase in the number of women enlisting in the Macedonian force of Marshal Tito was reported today by a reliable Allied informant. But the women, though shoeless, are still feminine enough to insist on wearing bright scarves—which make excellent targets for German snipers.

RUSSIA — Arrows indicate Red Army advances down shore of Lake Peipus and southwest of Luga to Serebryanka, a station on the railroad to Pskov.

REDS BATTLE FOE TRAPPED IN POCKET

By EDDY GILMORE

MOSCOW, Feb. 16 (AP)—The Red army made rapid progress today along the highway and railway between Luga and Pskov toward the communication junctions of Bychaya and Keofilova-Pustin, while southeast of Lake Peipus other Soviet units struggled through the dense forests and swamps protecting Pskov on the north.

Down in the northwest corner of the Dnieper bend the death struggle of the German forces trapped in the Cherkasy pocket entered its final stage. There every ravine, trench and clump of woods was the scene of desperate fighting.

Many more Nazis died as the Russian troops closed in, at the same time throwing back repeated rescue attacks by Field Marshal von Mannstein's tank brigades.

The advance toward Pskov in the north, however, was more spectacular, for it exemplified Russian fighting tactics as well as any campaign to date—the strategy of fighting down highways and side roads rather than attacking on a straight line front.

South and southeast of Gdov, between the southern shore of Lake Peipus and Pskov, lies a thin belt of forests with no such highway as the one connecting Pskov with Luga. The army newspaper Red Star said the Germans were concentrating their troops in the forest settlements, and this will probably force the Russians to use wide outflanking movements to capture them.

Ship Hits N.H. Reef, 25 Perish

Twenty-five crew members aboard a British freighter went to their deaths but 20 others were saved when the vessel drove up on Boon Island ledge, off Portsmouth, N. H., during last Friday's blinding snowstorm, it was disclosed today.

Seven of the survivors were brought into Portsmouth Navy Yard, with the other 13 landed at Portland, Me. Of the 25 dead, 12 bodies were still missing, according to the British admiralty.

United States Naval and Coast Guard craft waged an 18-hour battle to save the 7244-ton freighter, but she finally split in two.

Three of the survivors were picked up by the American rescue craft, and one of these three owes his life to the heroism of an American sailor who went over the side to his assistance.

Survivors of the tragedy at the edge of the famed Isles of Shoals told of the raging seas crushing lifeboats and of men leaping into the paralyzingly cold water and clinging to life rafts, planks and debris.

SURVIVORS LANDED

Landed at Portsmouth were J. F. Olsen, second officer; S. Haagensen, chief engineer; S. O. Hansen, chief steward; S. Nielsen, third engineer; E. Sjotlow, fourth engineer; J. J. K. Hansen, boatswain, and B. Crichton, apprentice boy.

The survivors brought into Portland were C. S. Parkinson, seaman; A. R. Webb, galley boy; Svend A. Jensen, seaman; T. Williams, third radio man; Carl E. Sorensen, first cook; Verner Christensen, seaman; Carl Nielsen, greaser; Eric Krag, second cook; Alexander Ross, seaman; Nils Glijberg, second steward; Elias Olsen, seaman; Stanley Wood, first radio man, and Helbe Verner Nielsen, third mate.

Survivors said the freighter, carrying a general cargo and groping through the thick, wild storm, piled up on the ledge at 2:23 p. m.

Though the vessel's plight was desperate, her master elected to remain aboard for the night in hope of saving his ship. At 6 a. m. Saturday, however, a message was sent that the craft could not last much longer. The word to abandon ship was given at 7:30 a. m.

The vessel broke in two shortly afterwards and many of the crew were forced to leap into the sea.

MAINE — Arrow indicates Boon Island Ledge, 12 miles off York, Me., just south of Portsmouth, N. H., where British freighter sunk in storm.

Chief Wireless Operator Stanley J. Wood, credited with saving at least seven lives, told reporters he was snug in his bunk when the vessel hit the reef.

SOS SENT OUT

"It felt as though the ship had hit something but the impact wasn't great," Wood said, adding that he sent out the SOS when it became evident the freighter was in distress.

All night long terrific seas pounded the vessel, and when the breakup came the forward half drifted off in a northerly direction but was blown back and grounded again. The stern was blown away and sank in an undetermined location.

Coast Guard and Navy rescue ships stood by but could not get close enough to take off the men, their daring service coming through picking up survivors against great hazards.

Survivor Ross, member of the British gun crew, said he and a fellow gunner reached a liferaft which soon capsized.

They succeeded in righting it, however, and half an hour later a rescue ship came up. Ross was too numb to seize the line tossed to him but an American sailor clutched his lifejacket and hauled him aboard. The other man missed the ropes and his raft swept on.

Second Steward Glijberg, one of those most seriously affected by exposure, was rescued after a lifeboat twice capsized, while Seaman Christensen was pulled to safety after only 15 minutes in the numbing waters. He had been shipwrecked before and also had been aboard a torpedoed vessel.

Second Officer Olsen was the last man to leave the stern section and Chief Engineer Haagensen the last man off the bow section.

As soon as the freighter struck Saturday the engine room began to fill, Haagensen said, and the engines were stopped immediately.

"All efforts to free her were un-

Yank Guns Rip Monastery Hill

By RELMAN MORIN

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Algiers, Feb. 16 (AP)—American siege guns have opened a concentrated bombardment of Monastery Hill and breaches have been opened in that main sector of the German line overlooking Cassino, it was announced today but in the invasion beachhead to the west headquarters acknowledged loss of Carroceto, 10 miles north of Anzio.

Warships again battered the Germans ringing the beachhead and RAF Wellingtons flung down block busters in a night attack.

U. S. artillery opened up on Monastery Hill following the aerial destruction of historic Mt. Cassino abbey, which the Germans had converted into a fortress.

German infantry presumably was still in possession of the key hill, above besieged Cassino, where violent battling swept into its 15th day.

The fighting increased in intensity as American soldiers who already hold one-third of the town, continued the methodical destruction of house after house which the Nazis have converted into miniature fortresses.

On the beachhead fierce fighting has swirled in the Carroceto neighborhood, with a canning factory there changing hands four times. Allied forces had pushed four miles north of Carroceto to the outskirts of Campoleone, 16 miles below Rome, but German counterattacks forced them back.

While Allied heavy bombers gave direct support to infantry on both the beach and main Fifth Army front, A-36 Invaders struck a sharp series of blows at railroad yards in the suburbs of Rome, plastering the Trastevere and Tiburtina freight yards through which German supplies and reinforcements were moving southward.

(The Paris radio said the Rome area was attacked again today and that Castel Gandolfo was hit yesterday.)

The Germans launched their first attack in several weeks against Eighth Army positions, sending infantry and light tanks against Indian troops. The assault, described as on a "small scale," was beaten back.

Photographic reconnaissance showed that the Benedictine monastery was destroyed yesterday in the attack by U. S. heavy and medium bombers, and artillery fire. Only a small portion of the west wall was left.

Joan's Attorney Bows to Chaplin Baby Decision

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 16 (AP)—Charlie Chaplin's slim shoulders, weighted beneath a series of criminal and civil actions, were relieved today of one burden—red-haired Joan Berry's charges that he is the father of her four-months-old daughter.

Counsel for Chaplin and Miss Berry accepted the verdict of a medical board that the 54-year-old British-born actor is not the parent as she alleged in a paternity suit against him.

"Under the terms of our stipulation the decision is conclusive," said J. J. Irwin, attorney for Miss Berry, 24, who bore the baby, Carol Ann, last October. "We must and will abide by the doctors' decision."

Chaplin had denied paternity but paid Miss Berry some $15,000 for medical expenses and agreed to undergo a blood test to settle the matter.

Irwin added that Miss Berry "is not available for comment and is in no condition to comment in any case."

Charlie Chaplin

The white-haired film comic, under federal grand jury indictment for alleged Mann Act violation involving Miss Berry, was cleared of the paternity charge when three doctors yesterday made blood tests of Chaplin, Miss Berry and the baby and unanimously agreed that the actor could not have been the father.

Chaplin, with six others, also is charged in grand jury indictments with having conspired to compel Miss Berry to leave California after a quarrel at the actor's Beverly Hills home.

Held in Threats On Actress' Life

NEW YORK, Feb. 16 (INS)—John Marsh, 21, was arrested today on a charge of threatening the life of Film Actress Katherine Grayson, and demanding she obtain military secrets from her husband, Army Capt. John Price (John Shelton of the films).

Katherine Grayson

Marsh boasted he is not an American citizen, police said.

His alleged threats, authorities disclosed, were contained in letters and phone calls over a period of three weeks. One letter, addressed to her husband read in part:

"We don't think it will be pleasant for you or your wife if you do not give the information we ask. When the German troops march through New York on their glorious triumphant day, you will be sorry. You will be shot and executed with the other sentimental Americans who thought they could oppose us . . ."

Hub Soldiers Enjoy England

By AUSTEN LAKE

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND (by transport mail)—There are villages within this orbit of England which nestle 'round the fringes of some local lord's great estate like poor relations around the skirts of a wealthy aunt. They are humble hamlets, much like those the older AEF knew in France—the same streets with angular elbows; the same churchyard with its reeling headstones, the same moss-clotted roofs which unite house, stable and hencoop; the same musty odors and narrow pavements.

Yet always near these towns there is a grand seigniory hidden behind high walls or screened by centuries of landscaping, and broad acres where the landed gentry used to live in a manor house sized like the Boston Public Library. I say "used to live"—because they don't today. The Army does.

There is one such at which I visited today, where the gray-stone manse squats astride a grassy knoll, and appears to be looking down its patrician nose at the hollows where a nest of black-roofed, sewer-pipe barracks shelters two battalions of U. S. infantry, and where the duckboard walkways bridge a sea of slime.

The regimental headquarters occupies the mansion — amid a museum of paintings and sculptures. The troops occupy the black-roofed barracks — amid a forest of stove pipes spewing forth a soft coal smudge that has become the memory-perfume of England.

There are an even score of Boston-and-vicinity soldiers in this gunky hollow, which once served no more useful purpose than a great man's pleasant window. A winding road loops through the hutment to a high portaled gate-lodge, where the keeper used to greet the squire's guests and where now a U. S. sentry halts all traffic with fixed bayonet and scrutinizing eye.

By courtesy of the colonel, an ex-Vermont Yankee, the 20-odd soldiers were excused from morning detail, and gathered in the

Lake Pays High Tribute To Non-Coms

Austen Lake, Boston American war correspondent in Britain with New England's Berlin-bound fighting men, tells tomorrow of the important place non-commissioned officers hold in the Army scheme of things.

"I never cease to thank God for our non-coms," Lake writes in another story of his engrossing series. "They are the backbone of the Army and the men who furnish the punch and 'guts.'"

Read Thursday's story in the Boston American by Lake which tells of his meeting with a group of New Englanders from Franklin, Brighton, Dorchester, Andover, East Boston, Revere, Taunton, Methuen, Stoughton, Cambridge, Watertown, Everett, South Boston, Gloucester, Hyde Park, Somerset and many other New England cities and towns.

Logs Found On B. & M Track

Two large logs, placed across the rails of a Boston & Maine siding at Winchester, were discovered at dawn today by Arthur Blanchard, tower man, shortly before a Boston-bound train carrying Woburn commuters was due.

The siding is used by passenger trains which pull off the main line of the B. & M. Mountain Division to let Boston-Montreal trains through. Winchester police believe boys had placed them there.

Jap Blockade Can't Win War, M'Arthur Says

By MURLIN SPENCER

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Feb. 16 (AP)—Gen. MacArthur said today that Japan cannot be defeated through blockade and bombing alone.

"We must defeat Japan's army and for that purpose our strategy must devise ways and means to bring our ground forces into contact with his at decisive points," he said in a special statement.

The Southwest Pacific commander made his comment following discussion of recent successes in which blockade and bombardment played a vital part.

MUST USE ALL THREE

"Both of these are powerful weapons indeed but decisive results in modern war can only be achieved through the combined efforts of all three forces—ground, naval and air," MacArthur declared. No one or two of them can obtain victory.

"The strongest military element of Japan is the army, which must be defeated before our success is assured. This can only be done by the use of large ground forces. It's useless and misleading to talk of short cuts. They do not exist.

"It's teamwork of a united, well-balanced command used as a unit and not the preponderance of any one element that is essential to victory. We delude ourselves if we plan otherwise."

CONTINENTAL POWER

MacArthur said the old concept of Japan as a predominantly maritime nation is no longer "factual," adding:

"With her immense holdings on the Asiatic continent, Manchuria, Korea and northern China, to say nothing of her southern mainland conquests, she has become intrinsically a continental power with her greatest potential inland.

"Her outlying islands of the Pacific represent an outpost position important, it is true, but no longer decisive."

cision and efficiency.

The best the Japanese could do was to send three planes in at dawn to attack—all three were promptly shot down by naval antiaircraft fire—and two hours later to fire feebly from shore long after hundreds of troops had landed. Landing craft and naval units replied furiously to the enemy shore guns and quickly put an end to that.

Lieut.-Col. Floyd Skow of the Army engineers and I were passengers in the Navy Liberator photoship of Comdr. John H. McElroy, Birmingham, Ala. We rode over the target for three hours.

We arrived over the pretzel-shaped island group just as darkness was fading shortly after 6.30 a. m. Barges were streaming from their mother ships which stood off at sea, and filing through the narrow channel into the Iissan lagoon in graceful lines.

An instant later, all the ships shifted their course and began zigzagging sharply. We at once saw the reason for it—three airplanes streaking in fairly low from the direction of New Ireland, which we could see lying black and mountainous on the horizon.

American destroyers and other warships guarding the convoy, as well as landing ships in the convoy itself, threw up a furious barrage of anti-aircraft fire and brought all three down.

By VERN HAUGLAND

GUADALCANAL, Feb. 14 (delayed) (AP)—Despite all the Japanese at near-by Rabaul could do about it, today's occupation of Nissan or Green island, between the Solomons and the Bismarck archipelago, was an overwhelming success.

Bracken Explains F. D. 4th Term Article

LONDON, Feb. 16 (AP)—Minister of Information Brendan Bracken said in Commons today that a recent article in a Church of England newspaper calling for a fourth term for President Roosevelt had not been subject to censorship.

"The newspaper that printed this does not claim to be the official voice of the church," Bracken said.

Eighteen-year-old Phillips Jackson, of Lincoln st., Dedham, who served as drummer boy for more than 2000 Dedham inductees in the past two years, today served in that capacity for the last time. He drummed his way down with a group of 14 other boys, then turned his drums over and he himself went into the Navy. A graduate of Dedham High School, Jackson reached his 18th birthday last month.

Roxbury Girl Bride Of Army Officer

The marriage of Miss Pearl Brooker of Walnut ave., Roxbury, to Lieut. Louis Blumberg, U. S. A., of Chester, Pa., on Feb. 7, was announced today by the bride's mother, Mrs. Etta Brooker.

The ceremony was performed at Savannah, Ga., where the couple will make their home. The bride has been employed in the Navy Department, Bureau of Aeronautics, Washington, D. C., for two years.

Lieut. Blumberg, a University of Pennsylvania graduate, is stationed at Camp Stewart, Ga.

CHANDLER HITS BRITAIN, REDS ON PACIFIC WAR

By DAVID SENTNER

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16—Affirming the war against Japan to be the most pressing problem that confronts the people of the United States, Sen. Albert B. Chandler (D.) of Kentucky, today put forward a dynamic military, diplomatic and economic blueprint for the Pacific. He proposed:

Equals emphasis on the war against Japan.

Establishing a single unified command over the entire Pacific operation.

Retaining the right by the United States, through mandate or otherwise, to maintain in the postwar era the necessary defenses on strategic bases to defend our commitments "without the necessity of sacrificing thousands of lives as in Bataan and Corregidor while building offensive strength."

Permanent and equal commercial rights along with other nations should be obtained to the airfields and harbors, constructed and improved at great expense to the American people.

Permanent trade rights equal with other nations should be retained in strategic areas.

MORE SOLONS BACK LEGION VET BILL

By FRANK REILLY
Boston American Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16—Friends of America's fighting men and women today continued to mobilize powerful support in Congress behind the American Legion's "bill of rights for G-I Joe and G-I Jane," an omnibus legislative program guaranteeing a fair deal to discharged and disabled veterans.

Legion officials, progressing in their informal poll of House members, announced that 141 representatives are now pledged to support the measure, with 60 probable votes for it and 27 noncommittal replies.

Half of the House members remain to be polled; 218 votes are needed to assure passage of the bill.

Legion officials, growing more confident by the day, voiced appreciation of the manner in which thousands of relatives and friends of service men are appealing to their congressmen to back the veterans' bill.

SOUNDS WARNING

Injecting a note of warning, however, Francis M. Sullivan, the Legion's national legislative director, warned that this is a preliminary poll only and that "many things can happen" to alter the course of a measure.

"We are informing all Legion posts that it is vitally important that they keep their representatives in Congress constantly aware of the grave importance the Legion attaches to the passage of this bill," Sullivan said.

Six outstanding legislators were among the latest to go on record as favoring the omnibus bill.

In West Virginia, where previously there had been no promise of this support, two outstanding members, Cong. Jennings Randolph, Democrat, and Cong. Andrew C. Schliffler, Republican, both openly favored the bill.

OHIO PAIR APPROVE

Two Ohio Congressmen also officially announced their support of the bill. They are Cong. Walter E. Brehm, a former Boston University student, and Cong. Earl R. Lewis, a distinguished member of the Ohio bar.

Another outstanding legislator, Cong. Wilson D. Gillette of Pennsylvania, also announced vigorous support of the bill.

The 20th New England member of the House—Cong. John E. Fogarty of Rhode Island—was also on record in favor of the legislation.

Mother Goes to Stand To Fight Adoption Plea

A young Cambridge mother, Adele L. Lallis, of Massachusetts ave., took the stand in Suffolk Probate Court today to fight a Jamaica Plain couple's effort to adopt her blond-haired, three-year-old daughter, begging instead that she be entrusted with the baby's care.

She took her turn as a witness after Mr. and Mrs. George H. Johnson of Burroughs st., Jamaica Plain, told Judge Frederick J. Dillon that they had "fallen in love" with little Marie Ann Lallis in the two years they have had her in their home.

Their testimony brought out that the tot's mother, after signing her consent to have Marie Ann brought up in a different faith, experienced a change of heart and withdrew consent to adoption.

At Judge Dillon's suggestion, the blue-eyed pawn in the legal battle stayed home today. Bored by the proceedings, she had tried to amuse herself by playing alone in the courtroom, but once burst into tears and had to be carried out by Mrs. Johnson.

Johnson told the judge that the child "has become part of me and has eaten into my heart."

"Marie came to us when she was an infant," he said, "in January, 1941, and she was in bad shape. She could not bend her back. She was suffering from malnutrition and her clothing was very poor."

He testified under cross-examination, however, that a check for $16 came each month from a charitable organization in whose care the baby had first been placed, but he said he furnished clothing.

Curley Testifies In $500,000 Suit

Congressman James M. Curley continued as his own principal witness today as his $500,000 suit against the Saturday Evening Post went into its second day.

He testified that he was caused physical and mental anguish by a reference to him as a "nimble coat-tail hopper on Roosevelt's band-wagon," as was asserted in the article "The Cardinal and Cold Roast Boston" and that the assertion was untrue.

The article was published in October, 1941, when Curley was running again for mayor of Boston.

The Congressman alleges the Post falsely held up Cardinal O'Connell as a consistent opponent of Curley and imputed use of the Cardinal's influence to prevent Curley's election to public office.

As the first witness, Curley was on the stand all afternoon during this opening day of the new trial. Most of the time was spent in reading back his testimony at the previous trial—which ended in a jury disagreement—and asking him to affirm or deny portions of that testimony.

The courtroom was thronged, with most of the spectators made up of attorneys or political figures. Curley, seated with former State Sen. Joseph Langone, is represented by Attys. Wendell P. Murray and Joseph A. Scolponeti.

For the magazine publishers are Attys. John L. Hall and Charles P. Curtis, Jr.

NAZI THREAT BRINGS UPSET IN ARGENTINA

MONTEVIEDO, Uruguay, Feb. 16 (AP)—Germany's curt protest against detention of the German military attache, Gen. Friedrich Wolff, brought Argentina close to war with the Reich last week, a diplomatic source said today, and precipitated yesterday's palace revolution ousting Foreign Minister Gen. Alberto Gilbert.

This source, conversant with the swiftly-moving events in Argentina, gave this version:

Germany Friday sent an insolent note to Argentina through the Swiss government. The note declared charges of Nazi espionage in Argentina were a "lie," and that Germany would hold Argentina responsible for treatment accorded to Wolff.

Gilbert angrily demanded a declaration of war against Germany.

But Gilbert, who presumably had the support of Ramirez and the President's former executive secretary, Col. Enrique Gonzalez, was unable to persuade the nationalist officers to agree to war.

Gilbert and two other state officials were forced to resign as a result.

Hiccup Girl Appeals to F. D.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16 (AP)—Anna Mayer, 21, now in her 44th day of hiccuping, looked to President Roosevelt today to aid her in getting rid of the affliction, which, she says, has caused her to lose 34 pounds in weight.

The girl appealed to the President to intercede for her in securing a leave for her doctor, Capt. Lester Samuels, attached to the Army medical corps at Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo.

Two years ago, Miss Mayer said, Dr. Samuels saved her life by performing a delicate operation when she was seized with a 42-day siege of hiccups. She said she did not want any other surgeon but Dr. Samuels to operate on her.

In Washington, the White House announced that President Roosevelt had referred Miss Mayer's appeal to the Surgeon-general of the Army, Maj.-Gen. Norman T. Kirk. Presidential Secretary Stephen T. Early said Mr. Roosevelt "hopes if it is possible he'll do everything he can."

Louis Sommers Rites Tomorrow

Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. tomorrow in First Parish Church, Meeting House Hill, Dorchester, for Louis Sommers, 76, linotype machinist, who, with five others still remaining, helped get out the Boston American's first edition in 1904.

Mr. Sommers died last night at City Hospital after an illness of three weeks. He was a member of Putnam Lodge, 81, the Odd Fellows; the Washington Lodge of Masons and the Shriners' Aleppo Temple.

Mr. Sommers has been a member of Boston Typographical Union since Aug. 1, 1899. In 1932 and 1933 he served as a member of its executive committee. Before coming to the American March 21, 1904, he had been employed at the Boston Post.

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Susan Gilpatrick Sommers of 109 Sawyer ave., Dorchester; two daughters who live with her, Louisa and Pauline; a third daughter, Mrs. Arthur Olson of Dorchester, and four sons. The latter are William, who is serving with the Army in Italy; Harold, of Providence, and Richard and Clifton, who live at the Sommers home.

The Rev. Robert Storer will officiate at the services tomorrow. Interment is to be in Boothbay, Me., Friday.

Irish-American Group To Initiate Thursday

The Dorchester Irish-American Ass'n. will meet Thursday night in Arcadia Hall, 206 Adams st., corner Dorchester ave., when President John Kearns will initiate several new members.

Following the meeting there will be a social hour with entertainment, dancing and refreshments.

Fine 14 Taxi Drivers

CHICAGO, Feb. 16 (AP)—A drive conducted by the Navy's shore patrol resulted in the conviction yesterday of 14 taxicab drivers for overcharging Navy men. Fines ranged from $25 to $50.

PALMER TELLS POSTWAR PLAN OF NEW HAVEN

NEW YORK, Feb. 16—Postwar railroad service "unsurpassed in efficiency, dependability and comfort" was outlined today by Howard S. Palmer, president and trustee of New Haven Railroad, in an address before the Advertising Club of New York.

"Seats will be as luxurious as your favorite easy chair and our dining and grill cars will contain many luxuries and conveniences that are still on the drawing boards," Palmer declared.

He envisioned a co-ordinated transportation system for Massachusetts, New York and Connecticut which would utilize railroads, trucks, and planes, provided railroads were not barred from entering the airplane transportation field.

"Our railroad wants to join forces with an airline and we shall contribute much to such a combination," Palmer said. "The airline that ties in with us will have all the advantages of our facilities for efficient handling of freight and passengers."

He called for public "protest" against legislation which will bar railroads from entering the air transportation field.

"We hope that Congress, in considering the Lea bill, will recognize the necessity for a fair and reasonable national transportation policy that favors no one form of transportation but considers the rights of airways, highways, waterways and railways."

COUNCIL MOVE ON MacDONALD STORM LOOMS

The Governor's Council was expected to take action at its meeting today on the reappointment of State Public Works Commr. Herman A. MacDonald, who appeared at a stormy State House hearing to deny charges of discrimination against employes of his department.

Pending an investigation of the charges, brought by various employe groups and the Massachusetts Council of State, County and Municipal Employes, AFL, the Executive Council had deferred confirmation of Gov. Saltonstall's nomination of MacDonald for another term in his $7500-a-year post.

The councilors, presided over by Lieut.-Gov. Cahill, heard witnesses declare that MacDonald had imposed an autocratic administration in which favoritism was common, promotions retarded and regulations disregarded.

One of the last witnesses was Civil Service Director Ulysses J. Lupien, who testified that at least 200 employes of the public works department had been found working under classifications in violation of the law, following an inspection by civil service officials.

Daniel J. Lyne, counsel for the State Employes' Union, declared MacDonald had branded civil service as a "racket." Raymond Bickford of Greenfield, president of the union, said criticism of MacDonald resulted in an invitation to resign.

The commissioner hotly denied all the charges. He admitted criticizing certain minor civil service rules.

Push Search For Librarian

State-wide search is under way today for William C. Clegg, 50, of Lasell st., West Roxbury, assistant librarian at Boston City Library, who has been missing from his home since early yesterday.

Clegg, father of five children, left his home for the library in his auto and has not been heard from since. His wife, Grace, fears he is the victim of a nervous breakdown.

He is five feet, three inches tall, weighs 145 pounds, has gray hair and eyes and wears rimless glasses.

TO DANCE—Edith Sandler of Dorchester heads the committee arranging the dance to be held by the Louis Neadel Bnai Brith Juniors, at the Hotel Bradford tonight. Feature of the affair will be the awarding of five free telephone calls anywhere in the nation to lucky servicemen.

HONORED FOR WOUNDS—Corp. Robert D. Blackman (left) of Beverly, and Pfc. Edwin J. Jozwiak are awarded Purple Hearts by Brig.-Gen. Jesse A. Ladd at an Army war show in Philadelphia. Corp. Blackman was injured when a German mortar shell exploded near his foxhole at Shiba, Tunisia, and Pfc. Jozwiak was wounded by a sniper in Sicily.

successful," the engineer told reporters. "A heavy snowstorm was raging and there was no visibility. Mountainous seas were pouring over the vessel Friday afternoon and all through the night.

"We lost one raft Friday afternoon and a lifeboat Saturday morning. When she split in two it was at a point between the main saloon and the No. 3 hatch.

"The 24 men of the crew who were in the stern section took to the water. Twenty others of us stood as long as possible on the forward section, then we jumped into the water.

"I must have been swimming for 20 or 30 minutes before I climbed aboard a raft where Second Officer Olsen had taken refuge. Men were clinging to debris. After a while Third Engineer Nielsen, Boatswain Hansen and Apprentice Crichton climbed on the raft.

"Chief Steward Hansen and Fourth Engineer Sjotlow managed to keep afloat by clinging to heavy planking."

Second Officer Olsen said the heavy seas broke two of the lifeboats on the windward side, but that he and mates left in the bow section managed to launch a third Saturday morning.

"Three men were in the lifeboat," he related. "As we lowered it, the lines, frozen brittle, broke and the lifeboat was overturned."

Mates of Radioman Wood, describing his conduct as "heroic," disclosed that he pulled seven men from the wild water as his lifeboat was bounced around by the sea.

Names of the lost men, including the master, and identity of the freighter, were withheld by naval authorities and the British admiralty—the former pending notification of next of kin, and the latter for military reasons.

Japs Lose Positions In Bitter Burma Fight

NEW DELHI, India, Feb. 16 (AP)—The Japanese have been forced to abandon some of their positions on the Haka front in Burma, while bitter fighting continued today in the Arakan area where an enemy force estimated at 2000 penetrated Allied lines 12 days ago and engaged in hand-to-hand battles with British and Indian troops.

Japs Get Parcels For U. S Prisoners

LONDON, Feb. 16 (AP)—The German news agency DNB reported in a Tokyo dispatch today that the first shipment of parcels to American prisoners of war has reached Japan via Vladivostok but further plans for distribution will have to be put back because of what the dispatch called bad treatment of Japanese in American camps.

Berlin

ly silenced, but the German-controlled Scandinavian telegraph bureau reported from Zurich that the heavy attack started many fires.

DNB, German news agency, declared in a broadcast:

"British air Huns carried out another terror raid on the Reich capital. The raiders were favored by the weather. A layer of dense cloud lay over the city and the enemy took advantage of this to drop bombs at random in several districts. The terror raiders were met by extraordinarily heavy anti-aircraft fire. Damage was caused mainly in residential districts."

Returning pilots agreed a ceiling of heavy clouds over Berlin prevented accurate observation of the results and also impeded the defenses. They said flak over the target area was intense but inaccurate. Fighter opposition was light as compared with some of the previous Berlin attacks.

CANADIANS IN RAID

Berlin now has received almost 28,000 tons (25,000 British long tons) of bombs in a series of 15 heavy attacks beginning Nov. 18, 1943. The total heavy bombers lost on these night raids is 467, an average of 31 a raid.

Frankfurt-on-Oder, a city of about 70,000, was attacked only once before, in October, 1940. Its main industries manufacture machinery and chemicals and it is important as a railway center.

Among the hundreds of planes which flew to Berlin was the largest force of heavy bombers ever to operate from Royal Canadian Air Force bases in Britain. It was composed of four-engined Lancasters and Halifaxes, of which four were missing.

This is the first carload of Matchless Juice to arrive from the new 1944 pack. It is packed under continuous government inspection and has been graded as Fancy or Grade A—nothing added, nothing taken away.

In order to pass this rigid inspection and acquire Grade A rating, the fruit must have been fully tree ripened so that it has acquired sufficient natural sugars to pass government specifications for Grade A fancy quality. Earlier packed fruits cannot be graded as Fancy as the juice has too much acid and not enough sugar.

Plenty of Florida sunshine and moisture has ripened the fruit so that it has now attained the peak of quality, and no finer juice will be produced by anyone this year.

Big Anti-Tank Ditch On Denmark Coast

LONDON, Feb. 16 (AP)—The Germans have built extensive anti-invasion defenses, including a gigantic anti-tank ditch, along the coastline of Denmark, just over 300 miles across the North sea from Britain, and have increased the Nazi occupation force to seven full divisions, according to reports from the continent.

The ditch was described as stretching from Jammer bay on the northeastern tip of Denmark to a point several hundred miles to the south. Behind the ditch the Nazis were said to have erected concrete bunkers and heavy gun emplacements and to have laid extensive mine fields. The reports said thousands of Todt workers completed the fortifications this year.

Five big surface airports have been built north of Jutland and there are others underground, it was said. All fortified areas are banned to the Danes.

Fifty thousand German troops were estimated to be stationed at a big camp near Aalborg, 15,000 more on the Island of Zealand and about 10,000 on Funen. The strength of police battalions to combat sabotage was also increased.

The Nazis have reported nothing publicly about such fortifications. Field Marshal von Rundstedt, commander of German forces in western Europe, asserted in a broadcast interview this week, however, the Atlantic wall could not be outflanked by an Allied invasion.

Prune Pie For A Little OLD LADY

A WEEK OR SO AGO I overheard a little old lady say to one of our counter girls: "Two pieces of prune pie, please, and a glass of milk."

• Now two pieces of pie is not an unusual order. From a husky youngster, perhaps a soldier or a sailor, or from a strapping man whose arduous work gives him a ravenous appetite, we often have such a request. But from this sweet, bespectacled elderly little mite or a lady, dressed in the fashion of a decade ago, two of our generous cuts of prune pie made all of us within hearing sort of gasp.

• Her eyes twinkled behind her spectacles. A bit embarrassed she explained to the girl at the counter in this way: "My daughter-in-law, I live with, is a good cook in most things, but she can't bake a prune pie for shucks. About once in so often I get real hungry for one like my mother up in New Hampshire used to cook. So I save up my appetite and come in here. You folks certainly do know how . . . it has a real old-fashioned flavor, and takes me back to my girlhood."

• That, I said to myself as I turned to go, is a real compliment.

State, Nation Top Bond Drive Quotas

Massachusetts and the nation chalked up another home front victory over the Axis today as late returns furnished increasing proof of the smashing success of the Fourth War Loan Drive.

Hours before the deadline last midnight, the Treasury Department in Washington proclaimed that the nation-wide goal of $14,000,000,000 had been passed.

F. W. Denio, chairman of the campaign in Massachusetts, asserted that the drive went over the top in this state, although necessary delays in tabulating the rush of last-minute sales make final figures unavailable for two or three more days.

Latest returns for Massachusetts revealed an over-all total of $732,800,000, or 92.3 per cent of the goal of $794,000,000. Denio said the remaining 7.7 per cent will be made up by sales now being cleared through the Federal Reserve Bank.

Individual sales amounted to $128,300,000, just short of the half-way mark. For this reason, all other individual sales in Massachusetts this month will be credited to the Fourth War Loan, Denio said.

These days there can be more real welcome in a snack shared in the kitchen than in many an old-time banquet. And with ice-cold Coca-Cola to add refreshment, you have all the makings at hand for a good time. As our men in camp and overseas so often tell, in all the world there's no more cordial invitation than those three familiar American words, Have a "Coke". At your icebox, the same as in P. X.'s around the globe, Coca-Cola stands for the pause that refreshes,—has become the global symbol of American hospitality.

Red Cross shack. There was a big, red-bellied stove there. But the men sat as they had come, overcoated, helmeted and gloved. They get used to living in clumsy clothes.

Let the writer say now that he has talked individually with every man he has listed in each of these serials. No name is tweezed from the service records and skimmed for its data. There was a conversational moment with each man, and most of the little pedigrees that I have jotted down cannot, for lack of space, be entered here, merely as thumbnail sketches.

So there was Pfc. Frank P. Garfaro of 18 Trowbridge st., Belmont, a grenadier who used to box in the Boston American championships as a welter, and would forfeit a month's pay for a stomach-filling feed of Mother Mary's spaghetti. And Pvt. Stanley Gruber of 38 Whittemore rd., Newton, a Colby College varsity football and baseball athlete under Al McCoy, who hit "two-for-three" against the Red Sox last Sept. 5 at Ft. Shanks—a game called in the sixth inning to pack the regiment for overseas.

And Pfc. John D. Kleinfelder of 54 West Central st., Natick, who is coddling a month-old mustache, and who is of that buoyant frame of mind that "enjoys the novelty of England." (Father Harry sends him the news clippings, while Mother Abigail sends the packages.)

And Pvt. Sumner E. Conant of 179 Main st., Peabody, a bazooka, or "stove pipe" man, whose brothers, Malcolm and Douglas, are in the service, and who wants his job saved with Commercial Refining (that's right!) under Harry Fields. And Pvt. John M. Durham of 285 Warren st., Roxbury, who writes every night to his bride, Anne (Curran) and used to be a counterman for the Scollay sq. Waldorf, which he says was "like being a mess sergeant to the Army and Navy both at once't."

'Not Too Tough Medicine'

And Corp. Charles "Duke" R. Ryan of 672 Moody st., Waltham, a 60-mm. mortar man, who used to fence with the foils and has only missed one mail call since becoming engaged to Gladys Martinson. And Corp. George R. Adams of 17 Lucas st., New Bedford, a machine gunner, whose bright memories are the sailing dates he had on his boat Sylph with his wife, Jessie (Matthews).

And St. Sergt. Kenneth H. Garrity of 5 Oat st., Clinton, regional message chief, who expects to go back to the E. R. Buck Chair Co., under Arthur Buck, and tells fiancee, Joan Howley, that "this medicine isn't too tough."

And Corp. George L. Brigham of 9 Sanders pl., Brighton, a pastry baker for Dorothy Muriel's (the firm sent him a magazine subscription for Christmas), who, as cook of his company here, is having fried chicken today (honest!) and whose stepdad Martin Halloran, is an officer in Station 14. Also Pvt. Lawrence "Kiyi" Caplette of 60 Canal st., Millbury, another bazooka shooter, who glories in the days when he danced seven nights a week, "mostly with Flora."

And Pfc. Charles W. Young of 6 Cutler ave., Cambridge who said, "In four more days I will have been married to Frances (MacArthur, for a whole year," and displayed pridefully the "inkless" fountain pen, a novel chemical gadget, that works with water, which "Francie" sent by mail. And Pvt. Walter F. Kelly of 9 Arcola st., Jamaica Plain, a battalion scout, who worked in the New Haven R. R. roundhouse, and is offering votives for the recovery of his mother, Mrs. Ellen J.

Young Bridegrooms

And Sergt. Larry J. Welsh of 31 Riverside ave., Quincy, who yearns to bake the dampness from his bones by sunning himself once more on Adams Shore beach—a "short bus ride from Louie's in Hough's Neck," where he could put the moisture back again.

And Pvt. Joe H. Smith, Jr. of 177 Chestnut ave., Jamaica Plain, into the Army from high school, and married Dec. 11, '42, to Marion E. (MacDonald). And Pfc. Peter P. Dunsky of 55 Wensley st., Roxbury, a messenger, who used to trawl for fish with his uncle, Gus Dunsky on the Spray, which was sunk at sea last year. (He is expecting a package from his sister, Mrs. John Reardon.)

In many cases the young bridegrooms prefer to give the addresses of their new wives, for sentimental reasons, rather than their former homes—often deliberating between the two, and saying, that causes them to think in terms of the "new home," although mostly they admit they'll have to make new residential arrangements when they return, though seldom certain what they will be.

For such are the vagaries of their present life that the future is fantasy, and only the present is solid.

So there was Pvt. John P. Fitzpatrick of 43 Knollin st., Malden, a former National Shawmut Bank messenger, and an adaptable youth, who claims he is enjoying himself here, and probably is, but who regrets the time wasted from the hockey he used to play at Mt. Hood pond, Melrose. And Pvt. Roy J. Sherrod of 13 Washington st., Reading, a rifleman, who made boilers for Babcock and Wilcox and played golf in the "long ago" with Dick Snyder at Red Hill C. C.

And Pvt. Richard H. Beddie of 9 Keyes st., Quincy, a welder at Lawley's, turned machine gunner, whose mail is signed by Mrs. Beddie, whom he married as Jeanne Peters in July, '43. And Corp. Robt. A. Comeau of 54 No. Main st., Ipswich, a 200-pound lumberjack with a seedling mustache, and, incongruously, a student aviator's license earned at Plum Island. And Pvt. George W. Holmes, of 114 East Main st., Middleboro, who has only been over six weeks, and tells dad, Herbert, and mother, Mattie, he's "fixed pretty solid."

MILLIONS HERE EXPECTED ATTACK

It happens every year. There is always a time when it seems like everybody has a cold attack. At this time be prepared and remember Penetro, a salve with modern medication in a base containing same kind of old fashioned mutton suet grandma used. Works 2 ways (1) Inside, Penetro's specially medicated vapors soothe and comfort, help reduce nasal congestion. (2) Outside, Penetro acts like a helpful plaster as its counter-irritation warms, stimulates circulation at the spot where it is applied. 25c. Double supply 35c. Always be sure to demand Penetro.

Fr. Mellyn Dies; Noted Educator

The Rev. James F. Mellyn, S. J., spiritual advisor of the Catholic Alumni Sodality in Boston and for years a faculty member of Boston College High School and Boston College Extension School, died today at St. Margaret's Hospital.

Born in Roxbury, Fr. Mellyn taught at Fordham University and St. Francis Xavier College before coming to B. C. High School in 1910. At various times he has served as treasurer and spiritual director of the Alumni Society of Boston College.

A pulpit orator of note, he was considered one of New England's best known Jesuits.

Lunch-box Ideal Tasty
HAM TURNOVERS

Mefolks love these new-style turnovers—ham-filled and made from baking-powder biscuit dough! Be sure to make 'em with reliable, cream of tartar ROYAL! Its even, "steady action" helps to give fluffy, tender biscuits, and cakes that are light, fine-textured, fresh-keeping. Help protect your scarce rationed ingredients. When baking at home, always use ROYAL cream of tartar BAKING POWDER! Insist on it every time!

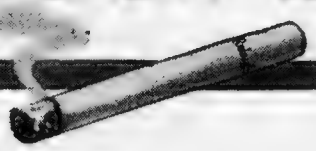
2 cups sifted all-purpose flour	½ teaspoon salt
4 teaspoons Royal Cream of Tartar Baking Powder	4 tablespoons shortening
	¾ cup milk, or half milk, half water

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt; add shortening and mix in thoroughly with fork. Add liquid to make soft dough. Turn out on floured board and toss lightly until outside looks smooth. Roll out ¼ inch thick. Cut into 6 four-inch squares. Place 2 tablespoons Ham Filling in one corner of each square; fold over to make a triangle and press edges together with a fork. Place on greased baking sheet and bake in moderate oven at 450° F. about 20 minutes. Makes 6.

HAM FILLING: Melt 1 tablespoon margarine; add 1 tablespoon flour and stir until well blended. Add ⅓ cup milk slowly, stirring constantly until thickened. Bring to a boil. Add ⅔ cup cooked ground ham and ½ teaspoon parsley. Mix well.

ROYAL IS RELIABLE

DOES YOUR CIGARETTE taste "DIFFERENT" lately?



NOT if you smoke Raleighs

HERE'S WHY...

THERE'S NO WARTIME CHANGE in the taste of Raleigh Cigarettes . . . because Raleighs laid in ample supplies of the finest field-ripened tobaccos . . . before the war.

NOW FULLY-AGED AND MELLOWED, these brighter, more golden tobaccos bring you a genuine pre-war pleasure smoke . . . without harsh irritants . . . without change in taste.

FRESHER, TOO . . . because Raleighs are protected two ways: (1) by the best moisture-retaining agent known; and (2) by Raleigh's exclusive inner wrapper.

2000 Latin Nazis Held in U. S.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16 (AP)—Atty.-Gen. Biddle told Congress approximately 2000 alien enemies have been brought to the United States from South American countries and are being kept in the 11 detention camps throughout the nation at this government's expense.

The State Department agreed with various South American countries these enemy aliens, mostly Germans, were "dangerous" and were "not being properly protected" in South America.

"The total camp population is approximately 10,000," Biddle said. After the war these persons will be sent back to South America and repatriated.

Cost of keeping the prisoners is about $1 a day, he said.

Canadians Save 23, Rich Cargo

OTTAWA, Feb. 16 (INS)—A Canadian corvette bucked huge swells and snow squalls in the North Atlantic to rescue 23 men and help save the $1,500,000 cargo of a blazing tanker, it was disclosed today by the Royal Canadian Navy.

H. M. C. S. Hepatica ran so close to the flaming tanker at one time that their plates brushed. Her commnader, Lieut. J. A. Ferguson reported the tanker was wallowing in the rough seas, its superstructure ablaze. He picked up 23, mostly Chinese, while a dozen others were taken aboard another ship.

The tanker's captain and remaining crew members fought the blaze and after three and a half hours, the tanker was able to sail again with the corvette as "eyes" because the tanker's bridge was gone.

Co-Ed's Body Found

WILLARD, N. Y., Feb. 16 (AP)—The body of Miss Barbara G. Lull of Rochester, 19-year-old Keuka College co-ed, was found yesterday in Seneca lake near the Willard State Hospital. She disappeared Jan. 3.

HEALTH QUIZ

	Yes	No
Do you have poor digestion?	☐	☐
Do you feel headachy after eating?	☐	☐
Do you get sour or upset easily?	☐	☐
Do you feel tired—listless?	☐	☐

Now everyone knows that to get the good out of the food you eat—you must digest it properly. But what most people don't know is that Nature must produce about two pints of the digestive juice—liver bile—each day to help digest your food. If Nature fails—your food may remain undigested—lie sour and heavy in your digestive tract.

Thus, it is simple to see that one way to aid digestion is to increase the flow of liver bile. Now, Carter's Little Liver Pills start to increase this flow quickly for thousands—often in as little as thirty minutes. When bile flow increases, your digestion may improve. And, soon you're on the road to feeling better—which is what you're after.

Don't depend on artificial aids to counteract indigestion—when Carter's aid digestion after Nature's own order, when taken as directed. Get Carter's Little Liver Pills today—at any drugstore—only 25¢. You will be glad you did.

Amazing Cough Relief, Mixed In Your Kitchen

No Trouble. No Cooking. Saves Big Dollars.

Yes, ma'am, right in your own kitchen, you can easily mix a cough medicine that is a wonder for quick results, and gives you about four times as much for your money. And it's no trouble—a child could do it.

You'll need a syrup. Make it by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking needed. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.

Now get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, and pour it into a pint bottle. Then add your syrup. There you have a full pint of really remarkable medicine for coughs due to colds. It lasts a family a long time. Tastes fine—children love it.

And does it do the work! You'll say it beats anything you ever tried. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Eases the soreness, and lets you rest at night.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well known for prompt action on throat and bronchial membranes. Just try it, and if not pleased, your money will be refunded.

The Record of a Century

Since organization, New England Mutual has paid $857,000,000 to policyholders and their beneficiaries. This impressive amount, together with funds held to fulfil present contracts, makes a total sum which is $206,000,000 more than all premiums received during the life of the Company.

"In sound accomplishment, 1943 was one of the best years in the Company's long business life.... The amount of new life insurance purchased increased considerably over the preceding war year. Mortality, surrenders and lapses continued at favorably low levels with a consequent impressive net gain of insurance in force. The peacetime dividend scale of 1941 will be maintained for the third war year.... The asset structure was further strongly reinforced . . . net surplus materially increased . . . and two special reserve funds were set aside to meet future contingencies."

New England Mutual enters its second century with its membership and its financial resources in sound condition.

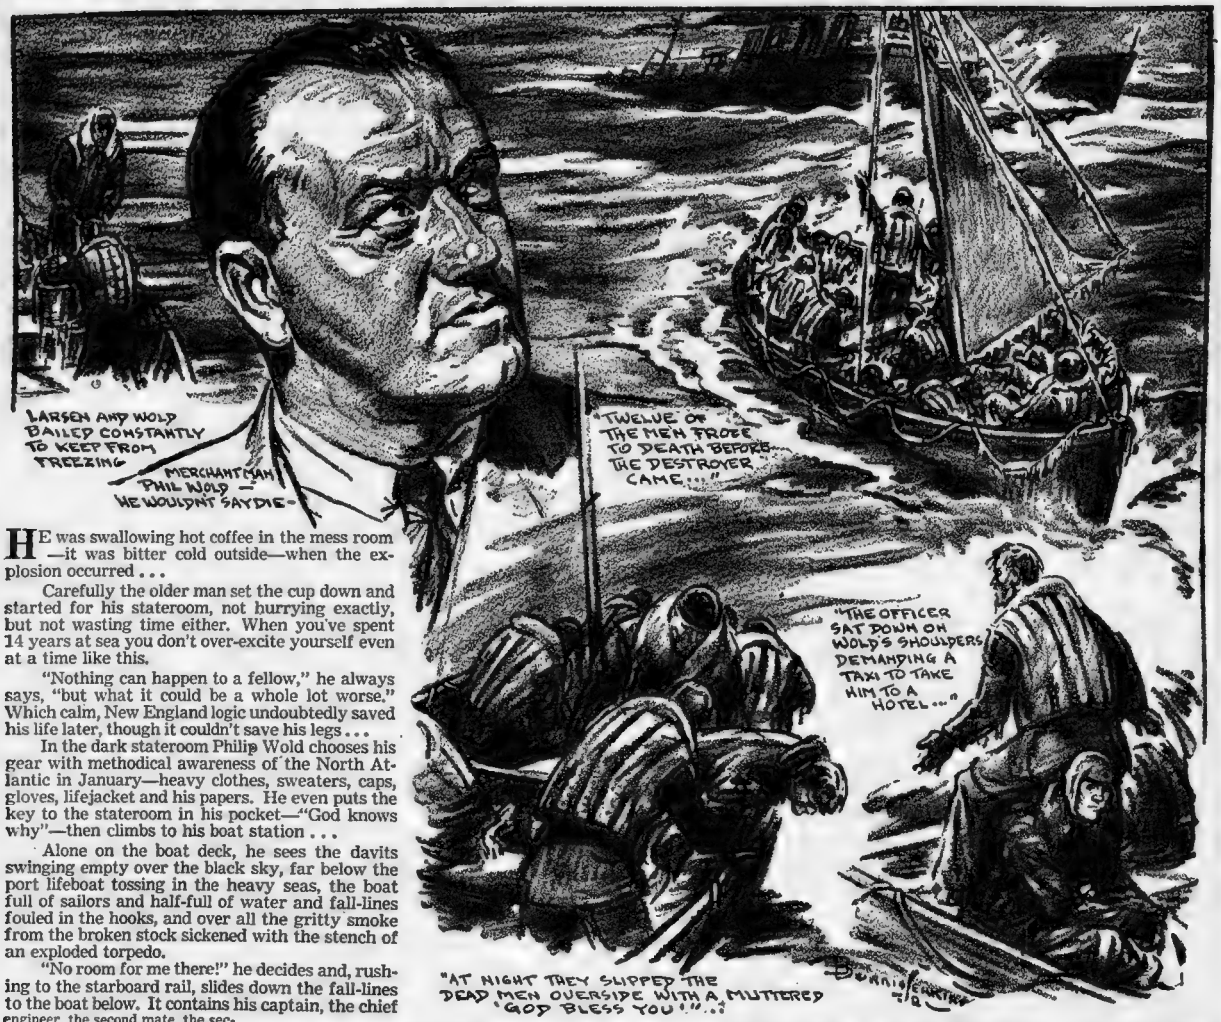
BACK FROM HELL -:- By Burris Jenkins, Jr.



LARSEN AND WOLD BAILED CONSTANTLY TO KEEP FROM FREEZING
MERCHANTMAN PHIL WOLD — HE WOULDN'T SAY DIE-
"TWELVE OF THE MEN FROZE TO DEATH BEFORE THE DESTROYER CAME..."
"THE OFFICER SAT DOWN ON WOLD'S SHOULDERS DEMANDING A TAXI TO TAKE HIM TO A HOTEL..."
"AT NIGHT THEY SLIPPED THE DEAD MEN OVERSIDE WITH A MUTTERED 'GOD BLESS YOU!'..."
BURRIS JENKINS

HE was swallowing hot coffee in the mess room —it was bitter cold outside—when the explosion occurred . . .

Carefully the older man set the cup down and started for his stateroom, not hurrying exactly, but not wasting time either. When you've spent 14 years at sea you don't over-excite yourself even at a time like this.

"Nothing can happen to a fellow," he always says, "but what it could be a whole lot worse." Which calm, New England logic undoubtedly saved his life later, though it couldn't save his legs . . .

In the dark stateroom Philip Wold chooses his gear with methodical awareness of the North Atlantic in January—heavy clothes, sweaters, caps, gloves, lifejacket and his papers. He even puts the key to the stateroom in his pocket—"God knows why"—then climbs to his boat station . . .

Alone on the boat deck, he sees the davits swinging empty over the black sky, far below the port lifeboat tossing in the heavy seas, the boat full of sailors and half-full of water and fall-lines fouled in the hooks, and over all the gritty smoke from the broken stock sickened with the stench of an exploded torpedo.

"No room for me there!" he decides and, rushing to the starboard rail, slides down the fall-lines to the boat below. It contains his captain, the chief engineer, the second mate, the second and third engineers, the radio oprator, two Brazilian messboys, and 10 merchant seamen like himself.

They wait a few minutes before casting off the lines. Finally Wold says to the Captain, "Ain't it more'n likely they'll put another torpedo into her since she's sinking so slow, sir?"

"They will," says the Captain and orders the sail set.

Fifty yards away, another torpedo drives into the ship exactly where the lifeboat had been lying against the hull at the engine room. They hear and feel the concussion as the boilers go up, and the whole stern of the freighter rises almost straight in the air as she dives slowly, bow first, her whistle blasting mournfully from escaping steam "like a signal of good-bye."

Darkness and cold now settle on the survivors, most of them nauseated from the fumes of high explosive.

Huddled in motionless misery, they sit shivering in what clothing they have as icy spray coats bowed heads and shoulders. One of the messboys and a sailor are bare-footed. The messboy had been sick with a cold and came direct from his bunk to the boat without waiting for shoes . . .

Wold and a seaman named Larsen cut up a raincoat to make "booties" for the barefoot men. Then they get busy bailing, "figuring that the best way to keep from freezing is to keep moving."

Larsen has only light shoes on, so he stands on a seat while Wold, wearing rubber sea boots, stands in the bilge to hand up the bucket. The captain is at the tiller and once Wold asks him how far is the nearest land.

The Captain Heads For Newfoundland

"About 200 miles," says the captain, "to the coast of Newfoundland." And he steers what he believes is in that direction.

The chief engineer hands out bundles of clothing from a seabag, sweaters, gloves and stocking caps, but the men still are too wet and cold and the wind too strong for sailing. The captain orders sail lowered and they ride out the night on a sea-anchor.

From bailing, Wold's fur-lined gloves became soaked. He wrings them out and gives them to one of the messboys in the bow. He gives an extra pair of woolen socks to a seaman without gloves to pull over his hands. Also an extra stocking cap to one of the officers.

At daylight, they break open a can of corned beef and one of the water casks. The latter is frozen. They dip the water from the middle of the ice with a can. To save matches, one cigarette is lit and passed down the line to light the others. It's still murky and blowing and bitter cold, but they hoist sail and go on . . .

Wold's shipboard roommate was a little Jewish boy, Abie, from New York. Wold tries to get Abie to bail, but "the frost has already got into him." Wold gives him chocolates he'd saved from Halifax. The boy is "like he's paralyzed and sleepy."

Larsen and Wold make a stove from a cracker tin. They feed it with wood from the sides of the boat. Chipped ice from the water barrel they heat in the corned beef. Unfortunately Larsen stirs with a "paint stick, but it's dam' good just the same. It's hot!"

Late that day Larsen and Wold notice two men strangely silent. Not wishing to alarm the others they slip over after dark and examine them for heartbeats. They are dead. Larsen and Wold slide them quietly overside with only a muttered "God bless you" for burial service. One of these is little Abie . . .

That night the sea-anchor breaks and the captain just lets the boat drift. He has been very quiet, but if he is cold he doesn't mention it.

It's a bad night. With sea pouring over, it's hard to rest, even under the canvas. Wold doesn't dare fall asleep. He hears Larsen pounding his feet on the seat beside him so he exercises his own freezing hands by kneading Larsen's feet back to life.

The Carpenter Loses His Eyesight

During the night Wold goes up to see the boys in the bow. One, a giant weighing 350 pounds, named Joe, a former burlesque comedian from Buffalo, tries to help bail. But his belt breaks and he can't keep his pants from falling down. He goes back to his seat in the bow and falls asleep. A little Brazilian kid up there says "I no afraid to die." Wold gives him a piece of ice to chew on. He thinks the kid is feverish.

Next morning they sail through flurries of sleet. When passing the cigarettes around the carpenter gropes for his. "I'm sorry," he says, "I can't see—my vision is gone!" Larsen lights a cigarette and gives it to him.

By now, sharks are following the boat. The news is "whispered about among the older fellows," but they keep it quiet from the others. The captain dies that day. Without saying anything, the chief and the second mate move him aside and take turns steering.

Altogether seven men freeze to death that day and the following night among them big Joe. Larsen and Wold decide not to put him overside. He's too heavy, and besides makes necessary ballast in the bow.

That night the second engineer, out of his head, suddenly sits down astride Wold's shoulders. Wold "lets him sit awhile." For some time the officer has been talking of "going below to see the engineer about more heat." Now he says, "somebody call me a taxi. I'm going downtown to get a room."

Wold pushes him off his shoulders. The officer's cap had fallen off and "icicles had formed about his head like a halo." Then he sits down and that night he dies.

On the third day—Wold's 40th birthday—only seven of the 19 men are still alive. Boat and men are sheeted with ice, some of the dead wedged under the seats, the sail raised but part way because of frozen lines.

Suddenly, in the morning, Larsen yells "destroyer coming up on us!" There it was, sure enough! The Britisher approaches warily, afraid of a Nazi trap. They toss lines to Larsen who makes fast fore and aft. A British seaman comes down and the men are hauled up on lifelines—all except Larsen who climbs the cork net by himself!

Then Wold is in the warm wardroom, where sailors tell them they had been steering their "bloody lifeboat straight for Europe." Next they are cutting Wold's clothes off and he's drinking hot soup and rum and reciting "Gunga Din" at the top of his voice for no reason at all except that he likes Kipling and poetry, and is a poet in his own right (which we could prove if we had room for some of his pieces here.)

Loss of Both Legs Doesn't Worry Phil

And then he is in a Halifax hospital and the doctor is saying, "Wold, we'll have to amputate that right foot tomorrow." And Wold answers, "Okay, you're the doctor," and goes on reading a book. That was in May. In June the doctor has to take the left foot. "You must be made of steel!" says the doctor next day. Because Phil Wold doesn't show the slightest worry or depression about his future.

"Why should I?" he says now, proudly pulling up his pants legs to show the new artificial limbs. "I get around pretty good on them. Now if I can only pick up enough money to open me a paper stand somewhere, I'll do all right. I always say that nothing can happen to a fellow but what it could be a whole lot worse."

The Income Tax Evil

WITH VERY LITTLE general attention, a movement has been started among the States of the Union to abolish the Federal income tax racket and to put a "ceiling" on Federal inheritance taxes.

Fourteen States—Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin, Illinois, Maine, Alabama, Wyoming, Iowa, Mississippi, Rhode Island, Indiana, Michigan, Delaware and Arkansas—have adopted a proposed amendment to the Constitution which would forbid Congress to tax personal incomes and inheritances more than 25 per cent EXCEPT IN TIME OF WAR OR SOME OTHER GREAT EMERGENCY.

The same proposal has now been introduced into both Houses of the New York Legislature.

This is in accordance with the provision of the Federal Constitution itself that amendments may be initiated either by a two-thirds vote of Congress or by affirmative action by two-thirds of the States.

It is obviously a movement of and among the States to correct a great mistake that was made in 1913 when the Sixteenth—or income tax—amendment was ratified.

The mistake was not in AUTHORIZING a Federal income tax, which was the purpose of the amendment, but in NEGLECTING to establish A CONSTITUTIONAL STANDARD OR LIMITATION on such taxation.

AS IT WAS written and accepted, the Sixteenth Amendment gave Congress an UNRESTRICTED power "to lay and collect taxes on incomes from whatever source derived."

During the first two decades of its operation, the Federal income tax laws were drawn and executed with considerable moderation, EVEN IN TIME OF WAR.

Under the Socialistic New Deal, however, the Federal income tax ceased to be used solely as A REVENUE MEASURE, determined by the legitimate needs of efficient government, and was converted into an instrument of radical "reform" and a punitive weapon of bureaucratic politics —IN TIME OF PEACE.

With the demagogic slogan of "Soak the Rich!" the New Deal has utilized income taxes to plunder free enterprise and to discourage individual thrift and legitimate investment.

As a companion piece, the inheritance tax has been similarly used as a method of expropriating private property.

Endowed institutions, such as universities and hospitals, have been impoverished, philanthropy has been stifled, savings organizations have been impaired, and industrial progress has been impeded.

FURTHERMORE, with the country again at war, the income tax has been applied by the New Deal to impose upon the nation the Communistic doctrine that no private income should exceed $25,000 a year.

In fact, under the current law THE TAXES ON SOME INCOMES ARE GREATER THAN THE INCOME ITSELF.

It is a capital levy.

And, because of the language of the Sixteenth Amendment, there is nothing to prevent an Administration from turning WARTIME tax rates on incomes into PEACETIME taxes when the war is over.

Among the advocates of the proposed amendment are those who perceive that unrestrained Federal taxation will in time OBLITERATE LOCAL FREE GOVERNMENT and substitute A CENTRALIZED TOTALITARIANISM.

One of these is Assemblyman Justin C. Morgan, of New York, who is sponsoring the amendment in his State.

Mr. Morgan said:

"The purpose of the proposed amendment is . . . to deprive the Federal Government of the power through UNSOUND and CONFISCATORY taxation to destroy the American private enterprise system . . .

"If this amendment were adopted it would also deprive the Federal Government of the power THROUGH TAXATION to destroy the American system of government by concentrating all power in Washington, rendering the States completely subservient to it."

Our Fine Women Marines

THE women's branch of the United States Marine Corps has entered the second year of its extremely worth while life.

With truth President Roosevelt has said in a special message addressed to the green-clad women:

"You have freed a large number of battle-ready men of the Corps for action in the great offensive relentlessly sweeping the Japanese from the Pacific."

With equal truth the President might have added that women Marines have taken over scores of tasks from men and actually handled them better than men.

Illustrative of this is the important job of training turret gunners—a job in which the women Marines not only qualified but excelled.

There have been thousands of tributes paid the Marine Corps' feminine members and there will no doubt be thousands more before another birthday comes.

Can storied urn or animated bust
Back to its mansion call the fleeting breath?
Can honor's voice provoke the silent dust
Or flattery soothe the dull cold ear of death?

—THOMAS GRAY.

THE QUOTING of these familiar lines is inspired by the protest of the parents of boys who fought at Bataan against spending money for a Bataan memorial. Take the money and spend it for ships and material for General MacArthur, say the parents, so he can take the Philippines and rescue the heroes of Bataan who are now alive as prisoners of the Japs . . . A resident of Elizabeth, N. J., says since the price of a haircut went to a dollar in his city he has purchased a pair of clippers and now his wife is cutting his hair. "And doing a wonderful job, too," he adds. I also have a reader in Chicago who married a feminine barber. His wife gives him a shave daily and cuts his hair once weekly . . . A Bostonian deplores all the comedy on the radio, in the theater and in newspapers "while this horrible war is going on." That is the wrong angle. During the Civil War, President Lincoln was criticized for telling and laughing at humorous anecdotes. He said: "With the fearful strain that is on me night and day if I did not laugh I should die."

PLEASE NOTE: The girls of Portland, Ore., have the best complexions in the United States. So states Max Factor, the complexion expert. By countries the best complexion standing, says Max, is: 1, Ireland; 2, Scotland; 3, Norway; 4, Sweden. This department is also advised by an expert on the subject that the young women of New Orleans make the best sweater girls and also are possessed of the most symmetrical limbs in the United States. This expert also states for reasons as yet unexplained the young women of Butte, Mont., are "more likely" to have thick, heavy legs and ankles than in any other part of the country.

ASIDES: Put illuminated house numbers on your place and give the messenger boys and delivery men a break. You can buy illuminated numbers for less than $3 . . . There may be some nylon released soon for hosiery manufacturing. Put in an order at your favorite shop and ask for a priority because of your foresight . . . "Spoon River Anthology," by Edgar Lee Masters, could be made into a powerful film if cleverly adapted . . . Twins run in families. This statement is in answer to a young woman who says her future father-in-law is a twin and there are two sets of twins in her family and wants to know if she is likely to be the mother of twins. The chances one of her blessed events will be a double feature are very good.

CLASS A HUSBAND: A well-known restaurant owner states he washes his wife's nylon stockings for the object of preserving the same. He says he has a special method which his wife has been unable to master. Sounds like a Class A husband. He says I can use his name, but am not doing so as I want to protect him from the ribbings that undoubtedly would result.

SAYS SHE: Writes a somewhat puzzled young matron of Chicago: "My 2-year-old son carries pliers, hammer, screw driver and wrench to bed with him nightly. Instead of playing with his toys he works all day 'fixing' them. Last night he wanted to take a big, rusty crank to bed with him. Do you think he will be a mechanic?" (Note—This youngster undoubtedly inherits his love for things mechanical. In families in which there have been no mechanics for years there will suddenly be born a gifted mechanic. And in families of mechanics there will just as unexpectedly be born a talented musician. The thing to keep in mind is that a child can inherit a talent of an ancestor of hundreds of years previously.)

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS: Q—We live in Soda Springs, Cal. Know where it is? A—Certainly, I have been there. It is near the Donner Pass on the road from Sacramento, Cal., to Reno, Nev. Beautiful place . . . Q—Was your mother Irish? A—My mother's father was born in Ireland. My mother was born in New York city. . . . Q—Here's an argument unsettled in our outfit. I claim Billy Sarni, catcher for the Los Angeles team, who played for that team at age of 15, is the youngest player ever in Class AA baseball. The sergeant says there was a 15-year-old player in the American Ass'n but he can't think of his name. How about it? A—Freddie Lindstrom, who later played for the Giants, was either 15 or 16 when he played in the American Ass'n. Perhaps the sergeant is thinking of him.

My Day

By Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Tuesday—Sunday morning I attended the first anniversary ceremonies of the Marine Corps Women's Reserve. I stood with Gen. Vandegrift outside the chapel at Ft. Myer while some 1400 girls marched smartly by, and I marvelled at their ability to stand the cold and look comfortable.

These girls deserve special commendation for having earned themselves a place among a group of men who were so proud of their organization that they did not want to admit anyone who might let them down. That is past history now and they know the girls are doing them credit.

IN THE AFTERNOON I attended the memorial service for Raymond Clapper. The men who spoke paid him the highest tributes, but I hope the memorial which we were told is being set up by his friends will be something living which can promote his ideals and standards of journalism.

After dinner Sunday night I went to the opening of the Labor Canteen under the auspices of the Washington Industrial Union Council. It was crowded with servicemen and hostesses were busy providing entertainment and refreshments.

COL. OVETA HOBBY came to my press conference yesterday morning and she reminded me of an interesting branch of the service in which the WACs are being used, the Army airways communication system, which is a wing of the Army Air Forces.

Several WACs are actually serving regular shifts as control tower operators at domestic Army air bases, probably the most important and exacting duty at any airdrome.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16—The coveted role of Nora in "Keys of the Kingdom" goes to newcomer Jane Ball. Jane, who has never made a movie, is lucky. Some of the best known and most talented dramatic ingenues in Hollywood wanted that part but once again a "new face" wins out.

I don't mean to say the Ball girl, who looks like a young Lillian Gish, hasn't had professional experience. Several years ago she was with the Albertina Rasch dancers and starred in the Coast road company of "Kiss and Tell." It was when she was appearing with the show in Los Angeles that a 20th scout spotted her and arranged for the winning test. "Keys of the Kingdom," with John Stahl directing, started shooting this week with Gregory Peck as the star.

AT LONG LAST Constance Bennett is achieving her great aim—to become a full-fledged producer. She not only signed a contract with Producers' Releasing Corporation to that effect, but made a speech at their convention and told the delegates of her plans. Connie was in Washington and got back just as I was leaving for the Coast. She's heading for Hollywood soon to start work on her first producing job. What her first story will be she doesn't know, but it will go before the cameras without delay.

THOSE WHO have read the script on "Outward Room" say it has the same haunting love story appeal that made "Seventh Heaven" one of the screen classics. So it's a little surprising to learn that Robert Young gets the co-starring role opposite Susan Peters. I say surprising, because Bob has played so many light comedies, but one to think of it, he's such a good actor he can play almost anything. Look what he did with "H. M. Pulham, Esq." and "Joe Smith, American." "Outward Room" is the story of a girl who escapes from a mental institution and is befriended by a hard-boiled steel worker.

MRS. JACK HALEY was in the audience at the Fred Allen show. She and Portland (Mrs. Allen) are great friends. What fun it is doing a broadcast with Fred. You even forget the butterflies in your stomach, he's so nice to work with. I still say I want Fred to do a good movie comedy, and I don't see why he doesn't write it himself. He knows his own brand of comedy better than anyone else—and just what will make people laugh.

Lana Turner

She has been given these titles and many more by the men in various branches of the service.

And it all started because of a sweater.

She was wearing a red sweater when she was drinking that malt and was discovered for pictures, and wore a sweater when she made her movie debut. Now she doesn't like to wear a sweater in pictures—she wants to be considered an actress—but she does wear a red dress in every picture.

Her full name is Julia Jean Mildred Frances Turner. She's a combination of Danish, Swedish, Irish, French, English and Spanish. She proudly says that should make her a good American.

She is 5 feet 3 inches tall, weighs 112 pounds, has green eyes and her hair is now blonde. She insists upon washing her own hair. Then she frantically goes to a beauty parlor to help her fix it as she "can't do a thing with it."

SHE JUST EATS what she likes, and she favors chili beans and cheese, chocolate cake and chocolate malts. She can't cook a lick.

She made her theatrical debut at the age of three. It was at a charity fashion show where her mother was one of the models. She rushed on the stage before anyone could stop her, held her tiny coat close to her and pranced up and down.

Because she has a photogenic complexion she can arrive at the studio half an hour later than most actresses because she does not use the usual screen make-up, just a dab of street make-up.

HER BEST FRIEND is her stand-in, Alice May. Alice has been her companion on trips, her secretary, chum and fellow-shopper.

She is married to Steve Crane. They were never formally introduced to each other. He saw her around town. And she noticed him. This went on for some weeks. Then one night at a club on the Strip, he approached her and said, "The band's playing my favorite song, 'Tangerine.' Will you dance with me?"

She replied, "It's my favorite song, also. Of course, I'll dance with you."

"Yes son—a woman's mouth is generally compared to a rosebud—but a rosebud is usually closed."

Brave Labor Stand
By George E. Sokolsky

AMERICAN LABOR is beginning to speak the forceful language of decision in this year 1944. Labor leaders on all sides of the political canvass are appealing to their followers to think and act politically.

"Labor speaks as the voice, not of a faction, but of the national interest as a whole," wrote William L. Hutcheson, president of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America at Lakeland, Fla., last week, in a document which will find widespread support and endorsement among labor anti-Communist unions that recognize and fear the Americanized version of Fascism which characterizes so many phases of our current economy.

Bill Hutcheson, it is true, heads a conservative union, but this document is significant because of its daring assertion of capitalist principles, more clearly and definitely stated than in any of the resolutions of the National Association of Manufacturers or the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. There are no weasel words in the Hutcheson document: no snide compromises: no tricky twists.

IT IS STRAIGHT shooting at a clear target. I have before noted the striking contrast between the guardedly worded pronouncements of the industrialists who seem to be afraid that they will be recognized for what they are and the frankness of labor leaders who want to be counted present in this battle for the retention of the American economic system. Hutcheson says in this full statement to which he gave the title: "Issues for consideration in the 1944 presidential election:"

"It is my conviction that the New Deal Administration has shown itself incapable; that its methods and policies have, themselves, created new threats to our national economy more disquieting than those which we have been attempting to escape; that wage-earners have been victims of a cruel political deception in that our economy has been entrusted to visionaries. When war ends, the twelve million men and women in the armed forces want to return to honest-to-God jobs. While they are away it is the duty of all men and women of good will to oppose unsparingly the national policies and leaders who have revealed an incapacity, or an unwillingness to make our American free enterprise system work. They must make their opposition effective in the approaching presidential contest."

He then summarizes his program:

"Labor demands of both national political parties that the candidates shall have the ability and their platforms the assurance of a progressive leadership to the end that the nation shall have:

"1—The preservation of free enterprise.

"2—The abatement of bureaucracy.

"3—The halt of paternalism.

"4—The creation of postwar jobs through private industry.

"5—The maintenance of labor's social gains.

"6—The protection of our national interest."

CONCERNING free enterprise, he says:

"In many respects, our accepted American free enterprise system has been in sad and constant retreat throughout the 11 years of New Deal rule. Under the guise, first of combatting the depression, and later of waging World War II, many of those in high places in this Administration have waged a continuous war of attrition against the psychological and economic supports of our free enterprise economy."

I understand that this document will be endorsed by a large number of national labor unions. Of course, the left wing unions will attack Hutcheson for, as they usually put it, bringing disunity in the ranks of labor. Those words, "unity" and "disunity" are becoming political weapons of intellectual coercion. They are being made into cudgels with which to break down normal and wholesome political discussion during a national election year. The effectiveness of this type of coercion is doubtful because there will always be Americans who will say their say no matter who tells them that a non-critical attitude is the wisest mark of expediency. Bill Hutcheson and labor leaders like him are weary of the doctrine of bootlicking to get on. They are talking.

The Correct Thing

By ELINOR AMES

SELF-CONSCIOUS? Constantly looking at your mirror, powdering your nose, adjusting or straightening a belt or ribbon show either lack of poise or careless dressing on your part.

A Facial Skin Renovation

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

ARE YOU TIRED of the face you have? . . . And, would you like a new one? How would you like to shed your facial skin for a complexion of petal smoothness and refreshing beauty?

These aren't riddles . . . There is a definite possibility that you can achieve the nearest thing to a new face . . . simply by following an easy beauty routine for seven consecutive days.

If you walked into the New York salon of the beauty sponsor of this preparation . . . and turned over the $200 price of admission to her six weeks' "Success Course" . . . this seven-day treatment would be the beginning sequence of your "top to toe" transformation and glorification.

And, after you used this seven-day wonder cleansing preparation . . . you'd emerge . . . so help me . . . with a startling new complexion . . . a complexion that had been beautified from the "inside out" into a new face of true radiance and startling loveliness.

WOMAN'S BIRTHRIGHT

Beauty is every woman's birthright . . . and she should make the most of it. And this preparation . . . a beauty promise made and kept to generations of lovely American women by this noted cosmetician . . . is such a simple affair, it will amaze you . . . but it WILL peel and flake off the dead layers of tissue from your skin after a week's uninterrupted use. But how!

It is a generous-sized box of cream-colored meal powder . . . not to be confused with beauty grains . . . and is chock full of magical potency . . . when just one tablespoon of the powder is created into a thin paste with the addition of water.

Apply this thin paste to your face and throat . . . that have been previously cleaned . . . scrubbing the paste gently into the skin with a complexion brush . . . or with a rotary motion of the fingertips . . . permitting it to dry.

Superficial blemishes and skin imperfections will be removed through the gentle abrasive action of the preparation . . . while more stubborn imperfect areas will be softened up for later disappearance in the same way.

RUB-OFF PREPARATION

With a soft turkish towel . . . rub the preparation off your face and throat . . . until you note a healthy glow to your skin. Then dash plenty and plenty of clear, cold water over your face and neck . . . and you'll feel perfectly grand.

Seven nights of this treatment . . . will repay you handsomely . . . and at the end of the week . . . your mirror will reveal practically a new face reflection to have and to hold.

For the name of this seven-day wonder preparation, phone the Beauty Dept., LIBerty 4000, except the week-end, or write me, care of the Boston Evening American, including a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

SPLASH CLEAR, COLD WATER on your face and neck . . . at the nightly conclusion of the seven-day wonder treatment . . . for a radiant skin beauty that will thrill you with its newness and freshness. Warner Bros. Star Lynn Baggett never misses the seven-time water splashing to complete her beauty routine.

Should Tell Sailor

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX—I am a young man, 21 years old and draft deferred. I have been going with a young girl who recently moved into the community and am very fond of her. I think she cares for me also, but is reluctant to admit it because she is engaged to a young sailor and doesn't want to hurt him.

Do you think I ought to continue trying to win her, or should I forget her? U. D.

If the girl you describe is falling out of love with the sailor and falling in love with you, it would be better for the boy overseas to know exactly how his girl's affections stood. It is no guarantee of happiness for any man to remain engaged and eventually marry a girl who cares more for someone else.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX—When I married Jennie, the family spoke of her as a "mousey little creature." She's quiet, affectionate, and likes to keep within her own shell. We got along fine. My family who are on the argumentative, aggressive side, couldn't understand why I fell for Jennie.

I've been in the service for six months and am about to go overseas. My mother and sisters write me unbelievable things about my wife, and her carryings-on with other men while I am away.

S. S. G.

I'd write to Jennie and ask her if these things are true. You needn't say you heard them from your own family, as that would be throwing gasoline on a fire of dislike already kindled. And then I'd take Jennie's word for it.

Informal Wedding

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN: 1—My daughter is to have an informal wedding in our church parlor, with only the members of the immediate families present. Is it customary to invite the pastor and his wife to the wedding dinner? We are not very well acquainted with his wife.

2—How should I introduce the pastor to the bridegroom's mother? He has D. D. after his name. J. R.

1—It isn't necessary for you to invite the pastor and his wife to the wedding dinner. (1) He won't expect to be invited, since the dinner is to be only for the members of the families. And (2) since they are not both close friends of yours, they would not expect to be included in such an intimate family group of guests.

2—Say, "Mrs. Allen, may I present Doctor Worthy." If further explanation is needed (and it probably won't be, unless her name differs from her son's), you may add, "Doctor Worthy, Mrs. Allen is Tom's mother."

The First Impression of You

When you are introduced to someone, that someone is going to think something about you. You have it in your power to direct what that Something will be. You may be good-looking and well-dressed. But believe it or not, vastly more important than these are your manners and your voice. The things you say and the way you say them . . . These are the real picture of what you are.—MRS. BEECKMAN.

Skirts With Flare

By BETTINA BEDWELL

SOME very powerful forces in American dress design are backing the idea of dresses with skirts that flare at the back.

This is done in various ways. Some pull a skirt to the back, so it has a flirtatious swish behind. Others use peplums, bows and slashes hung from the waistline.

If you want to se how Jo Copeland does this backflare business, you can see it in our sketch. This is a dress made of du Pont rayon printed with big white strawberries on a black ground. The gored skirt has a flaring cascading bow hung from the waistline belt at the back. The low neckline of the waist has a soft bow at the front, to balance the silhouette line.

Favorite Soups

By MARTHA LEE

MOST PEOPLE agree that there's something wholesome and friendly about any kind of soup. This philosophy probably has been handed down by the happy country folks who, in years past, gathered together on winter nights for chowder parties.

Three soups that are closely related to chowders are cream soups, purees and bisques. Each of these is different, yet each has something in common with chowders. Cream soups are often made from a single vegetable—such as peas, corn, carrots or asparagus. But several vegetables may also be used together. Cook the vegetables until they are tender and then chop or mash them.

CREAM OF VEGETABLE SOUP

3 tbsp. butter or margarine
3 to 4 tbsp. minced onion
1 cup vegetable water or milk, or vegetable water and milk combined
About 2 tsp. salt
About 1½ cups finely chopped cooked vegetables
½ tsp. bottled thick condiment sauce
3 tbsp. flour
Black pepper
3 cups milk
Paprika

Melt the butter in a double boiler. Add the onion, and cook over direct heat until tender. Add flour, stir smooth, then add the milk and vegetable water, and cook over boiling water until smooth and thickened. Add seasonings, vegetables, and condiment sauce. Heat, then serve sprinkled with paprika. Makes 6 servings. (1 cup of consomme may be substituted for 1 cup of the milk, if desired.)

Puree is much like cream soup, but it is always made from sieved vegetables and is usually thicker than the cream soup. Cook the vegetable until it is soft enough to mash through a sieve. If the vegetable is sieved while hot, it will go through more easily and there will be less danger of losing vitamins.

SPINACH PUREE

¼ lb. spinach
2 slices onion
Salt
2 sprigs parsley
2 cups milk
1 bay leaf
3 tbsp. butter or margarine
3 tbsp. flour
Paprika
¼ cup light cream

Wash spinach, add ¼ teaspoon salt and cook, covered, over low heat about 10 minutes, stirring occasionally to prevent burning; chop very fine or force through sieve. Scald milk with onion, parsley and bay leaf; strain. Make roux of butter and flour, add to hot milk and cook 5 minutes, stirring until smooth. Add spinach, season to taste, reheat and add cream. Makes 6 servings.

Bisque is the third variation, and it is generally a fish soup although tomato may be used in what is sometimes known as mock bisque. You can make it from clams, oysters, lobster, salmon or any other fish. First cook the fish and then dice or mash it through a coarse sieve.

OYSTER BISQUE

1 doz. raw oysters
1 lb. can ready-to-serve chicken soup with rice
1 bay leaf
¾ cup soft bread crumbs
1 tbsp. butter or margarine
1 slice onion
1 tbsp. flour
2 stalks celery
2 cups milk
Sprig parsley
¾ tsp. salt
Pinch of pepper

Clean and pick over oysters, reserving liquor. Cut the firm part of the oysters from the soft part and chop separately. Simmer the chicken soup, bread crumbs, onion, celery, parsley, bay leaf and firm part of the oysters for 3 minutes; then rub through a sieve. Melt butter, stir in flour, then add sieved mixture and oyster liquor. Bring to boil, add milk, chopped soft part of oysters, salt and pepper and heat. Makes 6 servings.

There are as many variations of these thick soups as there are combinations of vegetables, meat, fish and seasonings. All of them respond to stirring and tasting—with "a little of this" and a "pinch of that" added. But be sure that there is a distinct flavor of the basic ingredient—vegetable or fish.

2 Cambridge Cops Accused

Two Cambridge policemen today were charged with neglect of duty in connection with the belated discovery of the body of Dr. Benjamin M. Cohen of Cambridge in Garden st., 24 hours after the physician was reported missing.

Chief Timothy F. Leahy said Patrolmen Paul B. Covell and Francis P. McLaughlin would appear before a trial board Feb. 19 at 9 a. m. in police headquarters.

Capt. Robert J. Douglas, Jr., charged the pair with failure to tag Dr. Cohen's automobile while it was parked all night in Garden st., and neglecting to search for the car and Dr. Cohen after general orders to that effect were read at roll call.

Tabloid Musical Boston Hit

The "Hollywood Pin-Up Girls," a tabloid musical boasting a bevy of Broadway showgirls, will be the RKO Boston's stage offering for the week beginning tomorrow.

Importantly featured are Arren and Broderick, whose "Opera in the "Ruff" is promised as something to smile about; Ben Beri, Al Gordon and his dogs, the amazing Mr. Ballentine, Larry Stuart, Bob and Beverly and many others.

There are 10 scenes, handsomely designed, and quantities of gorgeous gowns.

For film fare there will be "swingtime Johnny," a gay musical with the Andrews Sisters, Mitchell Ayres and his orchestra and Harriet Hilliard.

MERLE OBERON

Merle Oberon Plays New Role

Merle Oberon's role in "The Lodger," the 20th Century-Fox picture opening tomorrow on the Paramount and Fenway screens, is a radical departure for the beautiful star.

Merle, who customarily plays wistful-eyed, gallant heroines, appears as the reigning queen of the London musical comedy stage, in the screen adaptation of Mrs. Marie Belloc Lowndes' celebrated best-seller based on the Jack the Ripper murders.

George Sanders and Laird Cregar are starred with Miss Oberon in a cast that also includes Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Sara Allgood and Aubrey Mather.

Deanna Durbin Clicks in Gay Comedy With Excellent Cast at Keith Memorial

By PEGGY DOYLE

Deanna Durbin, Universal's boxoffice darling, whose cinema career spells one hit after another, clicks again in "His Butler's Sister," the new Keith Memorial attraction in which she is teamed with Pat O'Brien and Franchot Tone.

And slick teaming it is, too, all the way. Production, story, performances, direction, music . . . all are top-drawer, blended in such showmanlike fashion as to give you the ultimate in entertainment.

Miss Durbin is in love again and was never more charming or in better voice, notably when she is lifting it in an aria from the Puccini opera, "Turandot." Again, she delights and surprises you as well as the orchestra members from the steppes in a Russian night club when she sings a Russian medley.

Nutshelled to you, Deanna, a smalltown girl who believes her half-brother, Pat O'Brien, is a Park avenue success, walks in on him bag and baggage to discover he is Franchot Tone's butler. There's a silver lining to the bad news when the lovely lark learns that Tone is a famous, young composer.

There's some nice business about Deanna, doubling as a housemaid in the Tone menage, almost maneuvering an audition for herself. But somehow Tone thinks the enchanting voice he hears is out of his radio or else he arrives when it's just a memory.

Another bright touch is the wooing Deanna gets from the neighboring butlers and the angry fire it lights in brother Pat's navy-blue eyes.

Also up for honorable mention are supporting players Walter Catlett, Elsa Jansen, Akim Tamiroff, Alan Mowbray, Frank Jenks, Sig Arno, Franklin Pangborn, Andrew Tombes and Evelyn Ankers; director Frank Borzage; scripters Samuel Hoffenstein and Betty Reinhardt, and producer Felix Jackson.

By BETTY ALDEN

A NUMBER of Bostonians are in New York today for the wedding of Mary Duncan Sanderson and Lieut. Edward Herrick Rushmore, who was in the class of '44 at Harvard and belonged to Hasty Pudding before he joined the Army Air Force.

Daughter of Mrs. Rosanna Sanderson, a former Bostonian, Mary is wearing the heirloom wedding gown and rose point veil of her grandmother and namesake, the late Mrs. Charles H. Fiske (Mary Duncan Thorndike) of Boston. Her attendants are Marie France-Graves of Paris, Ann Storrow of Boston, her cousin, and Letitia Clark of New York. They are wearing Gay Nineties style gowns in pale pink and blue brocade satin.

After a honeymoon at Marianna, Fla., the newlyweds will temporarily set up housekeeping wherever the bridegroom is stationed for further training. The wedding is at the Church of the Epiphany, with Rev. John W. Suter, officiating.

EIGHTEEN MUST BE Darby Almy's lucky number. On Friday the 18th she is celebrating her 18th birthday with a candlelight dinner party for 18 young friends in the Blue Room at the Copley Plaza before the next of the gay and romantic Waltz Evenings which raise funds for packages for prisoners of war.

Debutante daughter of the Robert B. Almys of Dedham, Darby's guests will include her sister debs, Grace Reed, Virginia Cabot, Patricia Saltonstall, Augusta Wolcott, Joan Titcomb and Joan McCagg. Among their partners will be Pfc's John Bullard, Carter Inches, David Sawyer, John Erskine, Reginald Fitz and several other Harvardians and servicemen.

Get a loan of $20 to $300 at Household on the strength of your job. No wage assignment—no endorsers or guarantors required. $50 repaid in 4 monthly installments of $13.46 each costs only $3.84. See sample plans in table. We also make car and furniture loans up to $1000. Loans of $300 and less are made under state supervision. Payments on loans of $300 or less include charges at Household's rate of 3% per month on that part of a balance not exceeding $100, and 2% per month on that part of a balance in excess of $100. Loans above $300 to $1000 are made at the low rate of 1½% per month on unpaid balance.

Hazel Franklin Returns As Ice Follies Headliner

By HUCK FINNEGAN

A MOST remarkable organization are the "Ice Follies," that sparkling Johnson-Shipstad skating extravaganza now showing for the eighth straight season at the Garden. They operate with the efficiency of the Yankees or Cardinals. Lose a Joe DiMaggio in Evelyn Chandler or an Enos Slaughter in Bess Ehrhardt and they keep winning pennants in the ice league.

Since last winter, for example, the Galbraith brothers, the McKellen brothers, Bobby Maxson (swing waltz), Bobby Widholm and Charlie Hain among others have entered the service. You'd think such a cleavage in the ranks would sound the death knell of the show; yet it opened here with a $200,000 advance sale, largest in Boston history.

Hazel Franklin

The reason? Talent scouts are forever on the lookout for replacements. They catch 'em young and follow them closely. Already through the recent Record-American Silver Skates Derby they've tabbed Sandylee Weille and Jane Weiss for future reference. And already they have a Silver Skates graduate in their ranks.

She is pink and white Hazel Franklin, now a great big girl of 19, standing all of 5-1 and weighing all of 90 pounds.

Hazel Derby Darling

PATRONS of the 1939 Silver Skates Derby will recall Hazel. Of all the celebrities that have appeared in the carnival—Vera Hruba, Arianne, Megan Taylor, Erna Anderson, etc.—none quite captured the public's fancy like the little English girl, over from her native Bournemouth only a few months at the time.

Repeatedly she was called back for encores, and at subsequent Derbies one often overheard the question: "Whatever became of Hazel Franklin?"

She's been around, but not around Boston. Signed on at the St. Regis Hotel before she was 16 and was headlined 18 months at Hotel Biltmore before the "Ice Follies" signed her last July. In view of the fact that she made her first U. S. hit in the Silver Skates Derby, it is fitting that she should be starred in a "Derby Day" sequence by the Johnson-Shipstad triumvirate.

Get an eyeful of her. She's a wowser!

Stands 4:11, Is MP

UNLIKE Mary Jane Yeo, Miss Franklin didn't let the 12x22 hotel rink surfaces "get her down." Twice a week, all the time she worked in hotels, she practiced on large rinks. When the "Follies" beckoned, she was ready . . . Hazel's one regret: that she couldn't compete in the Olympics like Belita, Cecilia Colledge and Megan Taylor, other English products . . . Miss Franklin turned pro when she was 12 . . . Her two brothers, Michael John 13 and Peter David 10, are in boarding school in Lake Placid . . . Hazel learned to skate when she was 8, played 10 months at London's Coliseum when she was 13.

There are 32 stars on the "Ice Follies" service flag, leading Oscar Johnson to shout: "Boy, what a ball club we'll have at war's end" . . . George Radle, a line boy, is already overseas . . . Here's a lulu: Tuffy McKellen, who stands exactly 4 ft, 11½ inches, is a member of the Military Police. "When I walk down the street with my night stick," he wrote Johnson, "everybody thinks I'm Warmerdam, the pole vaulter" . . . Old favorites with the "Follies" are Frick and Frack, Papez and Zwack, Heinie Brock, Betty Atkinson, Norah McCarthy and Mike Kirby . . . The 1944 Follies premiered in Hollywood for six weeks, starting in September, and since then has played Chicago, New York, New Haven, Philadelphia, Buffalo, Toronto and Montreal. After Boston the show will move to Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Minneapolis. There will be a month's layoff from April 9 to May 9, then off to the West Coast to play Seattle, Portland, San Francisco. During the 14 weeks in 'Frisco, the show will play nightly and make up the '45 Follies in the afternoon. Cast keeps busy 48 weeks every year . . . "Traveling conditions are much improved over last winter," Johnson reports.

Braves Want to Buy Players

By BILL GRIMES

"If the draft doesn't hurt us any more, the Braves ought to fool some people this season," declared Bob Coleman, newly appointed manager, at the Trinity Place station while he was waiting for the Southwest Limited to his home at Evansville, Ind. "We also prefer to strengthen by buying players we need for cash."

During the four days he was in town, Bob Coleman held numerous conferences with Pres. Bob Quinn and before his departure he stated that everything was in readiness for the spring training session at the Choate School, with the exception of a couple of exhibition games.

Unless he's given the "third degree," Bob Coleman isn't too much of a conversationalist. However, it was apparent from his actions that he is elated over the break that gave him his first crack at managing a major league club.

20-GAME WINNER

"We had good pitching a year ago," continued Coleman, "But, we could not get anywhere because the club couldn't hit. If Nate Andrews has one half as much good luck this year as he had bad luck last season, he should be a 20-game winner, providing of course, we can give him some help with our bats. And, the same goes for Javery, Tobin and Barrett. I know that Hutchinson will be an asset and I think that Dagenhard, Lindquist and Cardoni are ready.

"From what they tell me, Trexler, who is a smart left hand pitcher from Indianapolis, hasn't notified the club that he's going into the Navy. We'd be sitting pretty if Trexler reported.

"I don't believe that I have much to worry about concerning my outfield but I know I'm going to lose plenty of sleep over the infield. They tell me that Wiezorek is a power hitter and that he will hit National League pitching. Workman is all right. True, he only batted for .250 but he did some fine clutch hitting. Nieman, with one season of the big league ball under his belt, should break loose this season. I'd like to see him in center field for he's fast and has a fine arm. We tried him in that position on the last trip and he didn't look bad.

WILL BUY PLAYERS

"Right now, I haven't any ideas on the infield setup. Of course, Kirby Farrell, who did a fine job at first while filling in for McCarthy, will be back and we'll take a good look at Etchison, who was with Hartford. Of course, Whitey will be at shortstop but as to the second and third base men, your guess is as god as mine.

"The Braves are in the market for some infielders. And, although this may seem strange to some people, we want to buy players. We have a few players to put in deals but would prefer to lay it on the line in cash."

Ice Follies Brilliant

By MIKE GILLOOLY

Remember the kids who waltzed their way into your hearts in the Ice Follies Revues in past years?

Well, their act was near broken up by the war, but the resourcefulness of the Shipstads and Johnson installed a replacement for Bobby Maxson, so sister Ruby, now skating with Bobby Blake, continues to give you that tingle up your spine.

In past years, the petite waltz pair of Bobby and Ruby were a delight to the fans.

But since they were last in the Hub, a martial tune has hummed in Bobby's ears so that the fans were resigned to another rationing of thrills.

But there's nothing missing from the act by the substitution of Blake, an honorably discharged veteran. The constant curtain calls of the huge crowd at the opening of the Follies proved that.

The appearance of Ruby Maxson with a capable partner topped off a most enjoyable, colorful and delightfully different program. It's regrettable that the seating capacity of the Garden will be limited to 13,500 for the next 16 performances.

Owing to the extremely hardened condition of the ice, the opening was a shaky one as Norah McCarthy and Michael Kirby, paired in the Century Garden number, found out. But Miss McCarthy more than made up for her missteps in a later appearance in the Oriental Fantasy.

It's impossible to pick a single, individual star. Heinie Brock aroused his usual merriment with his clowning. Ole Ericksen and Buddy LaLonde, two men in a horse, were riotous. Betty Atkinson hit new peaks with her tricks with the baton. The Thomas twins, Mary and Jane, have improved their act considerably. Roberta Barton and Jack Millikan, as The Miltons, provided a new type of comedy. And the chorus line can take its place with the top precision workers in the country.

Tickets are also now on sale for the matinee Saturday, proceeds of which will go to the Record-American - Advertiser Disabled Veterans Fund.

Pitching Arm Trouble Limits Chandler in Draft

FT. McPHERSON, Ga., Feb. 16 (AP)—"Limitation of movement" in his right arm—the arm that won 20 games for the New York Yankees last season—will restrict Spud Chandler to limited service in the Army.

Ft. McPherson public relations said that Chandler, most valuable A. L. player in 1943, was accepted for limited duty. The 34-year-old pitcher took his preinduction exam yesterday.

Public relations said Chandler would be placed in the pool of men available for service. There was no indication when he would be called.

Chandler won two games from the Cardinals in last year's World Series.

Klein of Phillies To Try Comeback

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 16 (AP)—Coach Chuck Klein of the Phillies, once one of the National League's greatest sluggers, plans to make a hard comeback effort during 1944.

The 38-year-old outfielder figures he can play in 75 or more games, provided he can condition himself. Last year he hoped to play quite a number of games, but trainer "Doc" Bruce's commando tactics, he says, were too much for him.

B's Chances Slim, Cowley Out

After a one game reprieve, Bill Cowley is back on the injured list and will be lost to the Bruins for another two weeks.

"Cowboy" Bill was out of action for 11 games with a shoulder separation, suffered during a game in Toronto Jan. 8. He returned to the firing line Sunday night against Detroit and during the third period he was felled by "Flash" Hollett, who since he left here has developed into a body checker.

Hollett crashed into Cowley, contacting his victim on the left knee. For years, Cowley had a cronic knee injury and when Hollett got him, Bill thought that he was through for the season.

THROUGH FOR SEASON

After the game Bill remarked, "When 'Flash' got me, I said to myself 'that's all for you Cowley for this season.' I was going to go back to Toronto with 'Dit' tonight."

Realizing the seriousness of his injury, Cowley retired to the Bruins' dressing room after he was hurt. He'd been nervous before the game but after Dr. Martin J. Crotty had examined him and advised against his returning to the ice, Bill took off his jersey and started to shed the rest of his uniform. Then, suddenly, he began to pace up and down the room, mumbling to himself. Before anyone in the room realized what he was doing Cowley was back in his jersey and headed for the door. He wanted to win that game but it wasn't in the books for the Bruins to beat the Red Wings that night.

When he reported to Trainer Win Green Monday, Bill Cowley's knee was badly swollen and there was water in at least two of the sacks. Yesterday, Cowley was better. At least, he so stated when he came to the Arena. But, in the afternoon, he went to the Clinic for a thorough examination by Dr. Crotty, who informed him that he couldn't play in Toronto or Detroit this coming week end and it is doubtful, if he'll be ready for Les Canadiens one week from Saturday in Montreal.

BRUINS CHANCES SLIM

Unless Bill Cowley is physically fit, the Bruins' chances winning in Toronto or Detroit are the slimmest of the slim. Therefore, it is a wise move to keep Cowley out of action Saturday and Sunday. To a large extent, the Bruins' chances of making the play-offs depend on Cowley. The Toronto and Detroit games will not be any pink tea parties. The Maple Leafs are fighting to get into the money series and moreover they've lost four out of their last five home games. The Red Wings delight on pouring it to all opponents at home or on the road. And, the Leafs and the Wings know that if they stop Cowley they stop the Bruins. So, "Cowboy" Bill would receive a real going over on Saturday and Sunday, if he were allowed to play.

Bill Cowley will make the trip to Toronto with the Bruins but he will not go to Detroit. During the lay off between the Red Wings' and Canadiens' games, the Rossmen will play an exhibition game, for charity, in Ottawa, which is Cowley's home town.

BC Informals Meet BC High Hoop Team

This afternoon, at 2:30, the Boston College "Informal" Basketball Team will meet B. C. High in a pre-season match. While the young Eaglets from James st. do not start official competition until the Boston Schools Basketball League goes into action Friday, the Heights basketball team will provide their younger brothers with plenty of practice.

Coaching B. C. High is Fr. Dave Leo S.J., student councillor at the high school, while Fr. Ring of the Boston College Physics Department handles the B. C. "Informals."

Chain Store Ball Flayed In Card Sale

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Feb. 16 (AP)—From a club that captured the hearts of the West with a great finish to take the 1942 Coast championship under Pepper Martin to an aggregation that finished last in 1943—that is the two-year history of the Sacramento Solons.

Sacramento fans, however, sought today to raise $110,000 to buy the club from the Cardinals. They blamed the Card chain system for the downfall.

Bitterly, they voiced opinions that the Cards have tried a "sneak deal" in announcing sale of the franchise to Tacoma, Wash., before giving the local citizenry a chance to bid.

Last year they were just as bitter when the St. Louis organization refused to bolster the club, after it had been stripped of the fine players who defeated Los Angeles in the last five games of the 1942 season to win the championship.

Charles Graham, president of the San Francisco Seals, former owner of the local club, and a foe of chain baseball, said:

"The fans of Sacramento should have been informed first and given a chance to protect themselves before closing a deal with Tacoma enthusiasts.

"This regrettable occurrence is a concrete example of the dangers and curses of chain store baseball. The blame rests with the heads of the St. Louis Cardinals who did not give the Sacramentans a chance after they paid for and donated the Cardinals a franchise in 1936."

Entries Close For Big Derby

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 16 (AP)—Nominations for the 70th running of the Kentucky Derby closed at midnight yesterday as track speculators forecast a subscription list exceeding last year's 110 thoroughbreds.

The list of 3-year-old nominees, whose requirements are a $25 nominating fee and formal registration with The Jocvkey Club, will not be made public for three weeks. Owners have until Dervy eve, May 5, to post the $500 entry fee.

Platter, rated by many as the outstanding 2-year-olds last year and a leading rival ti Pukka Gin and Occupy, will be on the list of nominees.

Some doubt had existed that George D. Widener, Philadelphia sportsman, would name his Pimlico Futurity winner to the Downs classic, because of an aversion to early spring racing fir his thoroughbreds, but it was anounced at his Erdenheim Farm that both Platter and Lucky Draw will be given the opportunity to run in the $75,000 Derby this year.

The names of Occupy, Belmont Futurity winner, and the crack fillies Durazna, Harriet Sue and Miss Keeneland are reported in the list.

Boxers Ease For Friday Clash

Lefty Lachance of Lisbon, Me., and Vince Dell 'Orto of Philadelphia are putting finishing touches today to their work for their featured 10-round bout Friday night at Mechanics Building, in a Callahan A. C. ring show.

The Friday night card, arranged in substitution for the previously scheduled Tippy Larkin-Izzy Jannazzo go, includes 44 rounds of brisk glovework.

George Fuller of Connecticut meets Earle Louman of Washington in a heavyweight go. Gil Stromquist of Texas, who stands 6-8½ and weighs 255, fights Howard Thompson of Saugus in another heavy bout.

Jimmy Mulligan of Lowell will appear in another bout. His foe is not yet signed. A four-rounder between Tony Hatch and Jimmy Burke of Buffalo will open the show.

Giant Gridder Up on Charges

ATLANTA, Feb. 16 (AP)—William A. Paschal, rookie star last season of the New York Giants pro football team, faces a commitment hearing tomorrow, FBI Agent F. C. Holloman said, on a charge of slugging a fellow war plant worker whom he accused of whistling at him.

Paschal was released on $500 bond following a preliminary hearing before U. S. Commr. David J. Meyerhardt.

Holloman, agent in charge of the FBI here, said the gridiron star was arrested at the Bell-operated bomber plant near Marietta and charged with "assault with a dangerous weapon or instrument unknown."

The FBI men gave this version of the incident:

Paschal was walking by a refreshment stand at the plant when someone whistled at him. He accused a near-by worker, but the man denied it and turned away. Pascal struck him.

The man was taken unconscious to a plant hospital for treatment of a head wound.

Lloyd Waner Reinstated

NEW YORK, Feb. 16 (INS)—President Branch Rickey of the Brooklyn Dodgers disclosed today that Lloyd (Little Poison) Waner, one-time batting and outfield star of the Pittsburgh Pirates, has been reinstated and probably will appear in the Brooklyn lineup this season.

Sold to the Dodgers last year, Lloyd failed to report. This year he hopes for an outfield berth on the Dodgers team with his brother, Paul (Big Poison) Waner, who was on the Brooklyn team last season.

Rickey also said he expects Manager Leo Durocher to fill in as shortstop or at some other position, due to the player shortage. Durocher last played in 1941.

BOSTON HOOP PREVIEWS ON IN 1ST GAMES

Previews of prospective strength of the intown schools in basketball, returning after an absence of more than 30 years, will be held publicly tomorrow when the Joe McKenney City League swings into action again with a pair of games, a belated opening to their abbreviated season.

These contests will find Dorchester traveling to English and Mechanic Arts moving over to Public Latin for their curtain raisers.

It is true that Boston schools are in the experimental stages of the game. None of the coaches expect teams of Tech Tourney calibre for they're all just eyeing the future and on the strength of that, they're going to be experimenting with under classmen to carry them through this year.

TO KEEP BOYS ACTIVE

At English High School, for example, Coach Arthur Sullivan has 11 players on his first squad, six juniors and the rest seniors. With free substitution prevalent, Coach Sullivan intends to keep them all active for probably the first of the campaign, allowing the boys themselves to determine the starting line-up by their own quality of play.

As a result, English High's starting lineup remains a standing question. The forwards will be either Meyer Golubchin, senior; Enoch Woodhouse, senior; Kent Killam, Bob Lynch or Elliot Shulman, juniors. Guard positions will be battled out by John Ahearn and Leonard Kerr, seniors, and Bill Northbridge and Ed Raskind, juniors. The center berth will find Al Proctor, 6 ft., 2 in senior, and Bill Weinbaum, 6 ft., 1 in. junior, dividing up the assignment.

EXPERIENCED OUTFIT

Opponent Dorchester, under Coach George Barry, will have its starting team an experienced outfit from Y. M. C. A. and C. Y. O. clubs. Forwards Neil Blair and Terry O'Connor, though small are cagy players; Center Fred Bush has shown plenty of promise while guards Kenny Peters and Gwynne Edwards should be capable of taking care of themselves in city competition. Spares will be Joyce, Hoyt and Breen.

Mechanic Arts, Latin's foe for the day, has run into complications in its practise sessions at the Irvington st. Armory. Coach Bill Powers has had to contend with the problem of boys leaving school for permanent jobs and also the fact that the school has three varying dismissal periods—2, 2:45 and 3:20—so that the coach can hardly start a drill session with the same group. —GILLOOLY.

NOTHING NEW HAS BEEN ADDED!

We're proud it's the same old story with Carstairs White Seal whiskey—the same old top quality despite shortages. Even if our irreplaceable reserves are dwindling, nothing of lesser quality has been added to swell the supply. So the Perfectly Balanced Blend is still perfectly tuned to your taste. Sure, it's scarcer ... but when you do get a bottle, it's a thoroughbred from top to bottoms up!
